Registration Begins '80-'81 School Year

After a long, hot summer, the anxiously awaited beginning days of school finally arrived. Most students spent almost a whole day registering for the 1980-81 school year. As always, registration became a long, boring, but necessary task for every Trojan.

Students were scheduled to come to school at different times during the day, but it seemed as if everyone came at once. When at school, students stood in lines for the better part of an hour to reach their destination.

Hopefully once they did reach their destination, they could easily go through the process of registration. This process consisted of getting in lines again and for each subject, signing up for a desired period and teacher. If you got lucky, you got the right class, the best period, with a good teacher, and with all of your friends. Often this could not be done, and there was a conflict in the schedule. If a conflict did occur, well, . . . back to a schedule problem, there was always someone there to help you. Set up on one side of the library, where registration has become an annual event, there existed a table at which a student could resolve his or her problem. Faculty members at each desk helped to discover and solve the conflict in a schedule. These troubleshooters often became very useful in aiding a student to a speedy registration.

Despite the few small problems, everyone seemed to handle themselves well. Both faculty and students excitingly anticipated the coming of a new school year at Trinity.

Students Survive Summer Heatwave

As the blazing, hot summer weather cooled down, the Trojans struck back with a fiery new year. The sophomores and new students realized what it was like to be a Trojan. The juniors started jiving and the seniors got a taste of being the superior class.

When sophomore Lisa Teinert was asked what she thought of her new experiences at Trinity she replied, "I felt like a fool," or "I just knew everyone else knew I was a sophomore." When Jim Harness, a senior, was asked what he thought of the new year, he replied, "It sure was good to be back home," but it is still the "same old stuff."

There were heated issues at the beginning of the school year. The major issue was the mixed emotions about the new semester system. The students also had to be prepared to register for the whole year rather than one semester at a time.

Another major change at the beginning of the year was the drastic move of all the classrooms on the second floor of A building. All the vocational classes were gifted with a new hall this year under the cafeteria, and all the English classes were moved down to their original places on the second floor. Making this move eased the confusion of the halls greatly.

There were many new changes and challenges at the beginning of the year, but Trinity met them all and made it through the trying start of the new school year.

Sophomores Discover Trojans Have It All

It happens every year, and this year was no exception. According to the attendance office, a group of 707 new sophomores wandered onto the THS campus with their typical flair.

In order to make things easier for the Many traditions develop over the years. Sophomores learned the technique of raising their arm and pointing their finger as the school alma mater is played, a sign of pride and loyalty to their school.

sophomores, Mr. Fred Barney, with the help of the student council and administration, conducted a special orientation program. The sophomores were instructed by the cheerleaders in learning the alma mater and fight song so that they would be prepared for the first big pep rally. The sophomores seemed eager to learn, and they quickly composed their class yell and started preparing for officer elections.

The sponsors for the class of '83 were Miss Alice Adams, Mrs. Diana Keown, and Miss Barbara Ratts, and, like the sophomores, this was their first year at Trinity. These teachers will remain with the class throughout their upcoming years at Trinity.

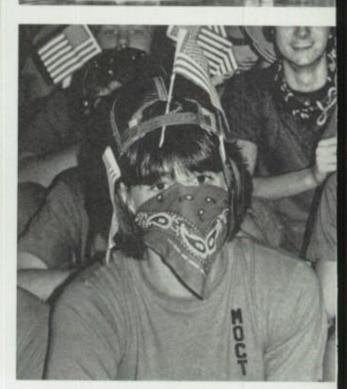

Mr. Murray welcomed the sophomores to Trinity and conducted a brief question and answer period. Other speakers were Lori Loerwald, Todd Smith, and Bob Hildreth.

In addition, the student body joined forces to present a parade of organizations. The many organizations at Trinity were well represented, and the sophomores were well informed of their extracurricular opportunities.

THS Pep Rallies: A Chance To Let Go

Pep rallies provided an opportunity for students at Trinity to release the energy and frustration that built up during a week of school. The MOCT led the crowd in cheers they originated. movements representing the letters T-R-O-J-A-N-S in the middle of the gym floor while the student body backed him up.

The drill team performed a new and different routine at each pep rally. The cheerleaders went to great lengths and heights to build breathtaking pyramids to the "oohs" and "aahs" of spectators. "Tu-ba, Tu-ba" quickly caught on at the pep rallies and became a tradition.

As the football team began winning consistently, the basic theme became "Another One Bites the Dust." Competition between classes for the spirit stick proved to be strong this year with the sophomores even pulling an occasional win. Pep rallies were intended to "pep up" the football players. Evidently, from judging the team's record, the highspirited Trojan pep rallies did their job effectively.

The band faithfully attended each pep rally in spirit, as well as in form. The flag corps, drum corps, and twirlers performed award-winning routines to receive standing ovations from the crowd. Several members of the faculty combined talents to put on a particularly memorable skit with Mr. Wilhite portraying "Mr. Rogers."

The MOCT's "This Is Your Life" series featuring Tommy Wilder as host and centering around a different football player each week became a favorite among many students. Aside from all groups and organizations, students made the assembly, and their spirit made that assembly a pep rally.

Experts Predict Successful Season

From the beginning to the end, the football season was a tremendous success. The Trojan football team began the year hoping they had the impetus to achieve the district championship as they had the previous year.

The Trojans started the season soundly defeating the Richland Rebels 14-0. Both teams had been chosen to be the best of their districts, but Trinity's defense revealed to the fans that Trinity was the better of the two. Richland progressed to Trinity's end of the field, but the defense refused to let them score. The two touchdowns were made by Scott Above: Fullback Scott Adams refuses to let Highland Park keep him from gaining yardage. Adams rushed for 949 yards this season and won the 5A-9 rushing title with 759 yards, edging Matt Skinner with 706 yards.

Adams and Matt Skinner.

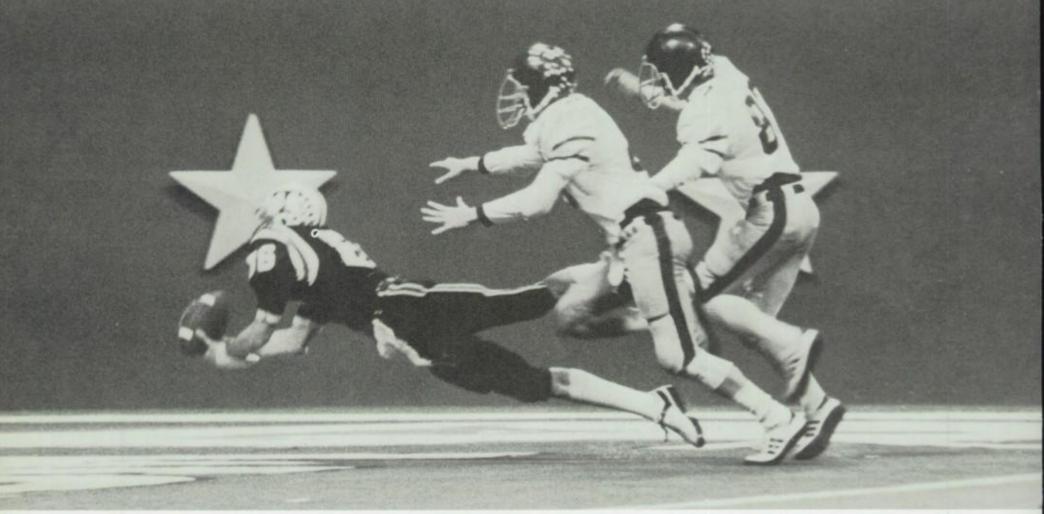

After Trinity defeated Richland they quickly trampled over Thomas Jefferson, with Scott Adams scoring twice and Skinner scoring once for the Trojans. Walt Zartman contributed to the score, receiving a pass from Skinner, making Trinity's final score 28 to Thomas Jefferson's 3.

Trinity's next victory over Haltom was a good one, but a close one. Coach John Reddell believed that the defense had been the best part of the game, and Bob Michelsen played a major part in it. Michelsen managed to intercept a pass with 4:25 left in the game at the Trinity two and later prevented two crucial passes from being completed. Skinner completed a 40-yard pass to Michael Patak for Trinity's first store. Scott Adams ran for the second touchdown late in the first quarter. Haltom's only score came when Skinner, rather than punt out of his end zone, turned around and tossed the ball over the goal line for a safety. Thus, the final score was Trinity 12 and Haltom 9.

Trinity Progresses Toward District

The Trojans were a stunning sight to see against the Grand Prairie Gophers. Mark Young made an exceptional play when he grabbed a blocked Grand Prairie punt and ran it in 10 yards to score. Skinner and Adams each contributed two touchdowns, making the score 34-9.

The biggest highlight of the season was when the Trojans easily defeated the Irving Tigers. The offense and Skinner were an awesome sight. Adams made a 6-yard run and scored the first touchdown. After Irving had scored, Matt Skinner ran 62 yards for Trinity's second touchdown. Skinner scored again on a 3-yard run. In the second half, Skinner completed a pass to Jimmy Mellado for another touchdown. Later Adams scored the final touchdown for the Trojans. Irving scored in the final few seconds of the game, making the scoreboard read Trinity 42, Irving 12.

Not only did Trinity easily defeat Irving, but they also rolled over South

Grand Prairie. Trinity scored first when Skinner pitched to Mellado on a 22-yard touchdown play. Randy Swain intercepted a pass, turning the ball over to the Trojans so Adams could score another touchdown. Trinity's Walt Zartman then received a 15-yard pass from Skinner to run the score to 20-0 at the end of the first quarter. After seven plays, Mellado scampered 20 yards for another touchdown.

South Grand Prairie managed to score in the last minute of the first half. In the second half, Patak received a 15-yard pass and scored again for Trinity. South Grand Prairie had one other touchdown, and then Skinner and Mike Moore each ran 3-vard plays to make the final score 47-14.

Trojans Dominate District

Not familiar with losing, the Trojans were shocked when the Duncanville Panthers beat them. After Duncanville had scored twice in the first quarter, Skinner completed a 68-yard pass to Mellado for Trinity's first score. Then in the third quarter, Patak scored with a 22-yard pass and Skinner succeeded in a 67-yard run. Zartman caught a 9-yard pass in the same quarter, making Trinity's score 27. The Panthers were too much for the Trojans to handle with their final score of 38.

Although Trinity suffered a loss to Duncanville, they didn't let it keep them from beating the Nimitz Vikings the Above: Safety Phil Waschka knocks down a pass intended for a MacArthur Cardinal. This is one example of the outstanding Trojan defense, which was rated one of the best in the district and in the state.

following week. Trinity started the game with Mellado running 13 yards for Trinity's first score. Then, in the second quarter, Skinner ran a 1-yard run for a touchdown. He also threw a 15-yard pass received by Michael Patak to score again. In the last second of the game, Skinner scored again which made the score 28-0.

The Trojans continued their winning season when they played Irving MacArthur. Zartman scored first with a 23-yard pass from Skinner. MacAruthur then came back and tied the score. Later Skinner ran 67 yards for another touchdown; but MacArthur refused to let the Trojans be ahead and therefore scored again. Adams, however, brought the Trojans back by scoring a touchdown and making the score 21-14.

The Trojans proved that they were the district's best when they easily rolled over Bell 30-0. Adams began the stampede when he ran for 7 yards and later for 1 yard and scored both times. Then Skinner contributed to the killing by running 1 yard to score. An addition to the score was made when Zartman received a 15-yard pass and Trinity also gained two points from a safety. The Trojans, tied for district champs, returned to Texas Stadium once again.

Trinity's dream of advancing as far as the state quarter-finals again this year were shattered by Highland Park. Mike Moore caught a 4-yard pass and Zartman made a spectacular touchdown catch that was later nullified. Thus, Trinity's final score was a mere 6 points and the Scots rolled for 20, ending the Trojans' season.

J.V. Follows In The Footsteps Of Varsity

What's the purpose for having a junior varsity football team? The main reason for Trinity's junior varsity is to prepare and train the athletes from the junior highs for a winning season on the varsity. The junior high coaches have done an excellent job conditioning their boys and therefore the results have been superb.

The junior varsity's offense was one of the best there has ever been. They scored an average of 33 points per game. They were unbelievable, as they beat such teams as South Grand Prairie 64-6, Thomas Jefferson 53-0, Duncanville 40-0, and MacArthur 40-6. With impressive wins such as these, the Trinity Trojans will surely be contenders for the district, and perhaps the state championships next year.

On the other hand, the defense also contributed heavily to the Trojan success. They allowed the opponents a total of 77 points the entire season. They consistently forced fumbles and recovered them so the offense could score again.

The JV's ego was somewhat crushed when they lost their only game, but it was restored when they beat L. D. Bell. Spirit was expressed by everyone with shirts, yells, and posters during Spirit Week. The JV's victory over Bell inspired the varsity team to do the same.

Action Plentiful During Halftime

After a stimulating first half, eager football fans awaited the Trojan halftime show, which always proved to be enjoyable and entertaining. The band began the show with various and difficult maneuvers and astonishing the crowd by forming numerous puzzling designs.

Near the end of the performance the drum and flag corps, along with the twirlers gave their own exhibition. While the drum corps performed their cadence to "William Tell Overture," the flag corps quickly whirled the flags with sharp, precise movements. During all this, the twirlers were busy twirling, spinning and smiling.

After the breathtaking entertainment of the band's performance, the accurate drill team took their turn. They marched onto the field with acute readiness. Their kicks, headsnaps and overall movement proved to be sharp and simultaneous. As the halftime show came to an end, the drill team marched proudly off the field to the drum cadence.

The Trojan yellman filled the eager crowd with spirit as they participated in building various pyramids, adding humor and suspense. The cheerleaders and mascot, after enjoying a break in their routine to watch the fascinating show along with the crowd, returned in leading the enthusiastic fans to cheering the Trojans on to another victory.

Enthusiasm Excels At '80 Homecoming

Trojans "Heroes" dominated both the scene and the playing field during Homecoming week. During this week several activities brought out the highlights of Homecoming. These included the parade, hall decorations, the bonTop left: "Our Heroes have always been Trojans," expressed the Homecoming theme. The Trojan football team serves as an excellent example of Heroes. fire, class floats, and the high-spirited pep rally.

The parade gave each class and organization an opportunity to display their final production. Though the parade and class floats exhibited much work, the hall decorations gave everyone a chance to add their own concept to their hall.

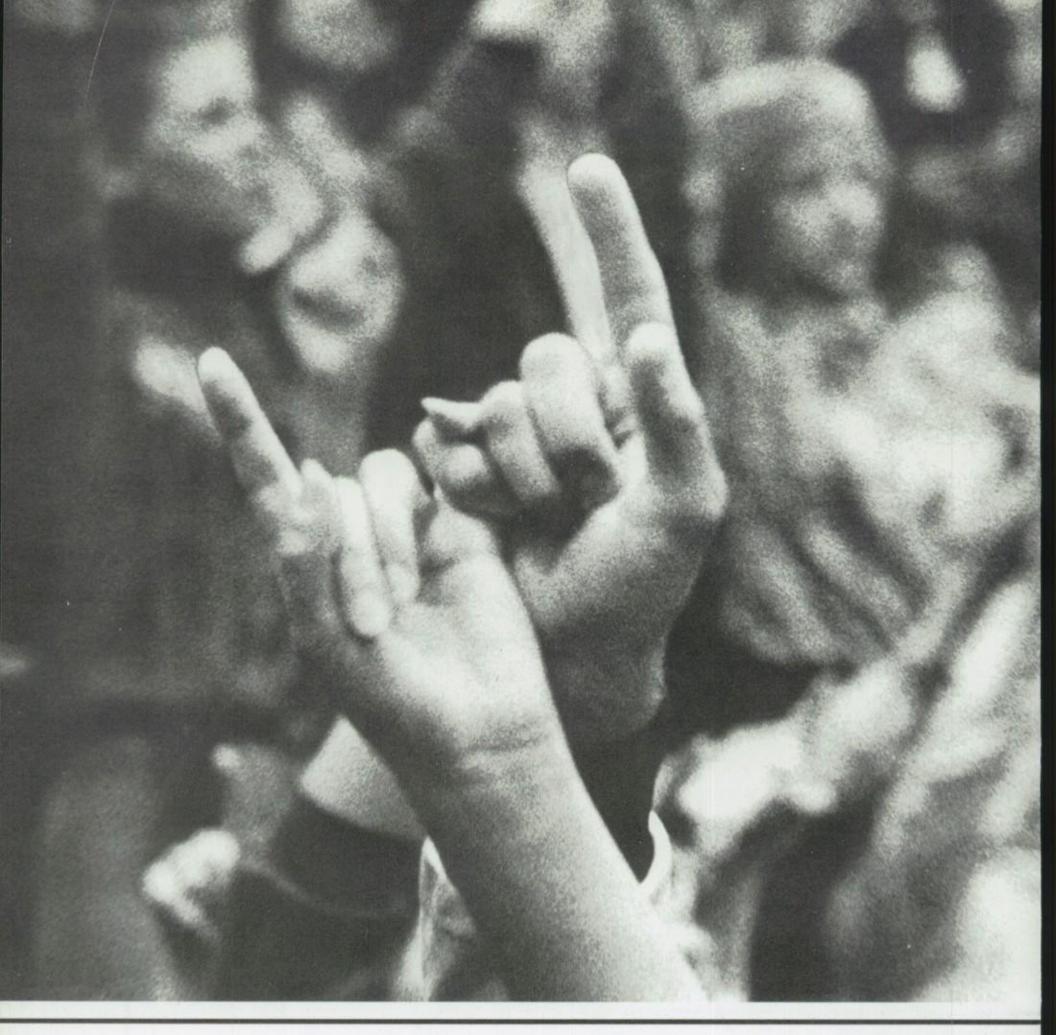

Usually at Homecoming, girls receive huge decorative flowers called "Mums." Linda Taylor and Teresa Ball display this dazzling beauty of the mum. Right: Bobby Payton and the other band members marching in the parade add another harmonious accent to Homecoming week at Trinity.

But with all these occurrences taking place at Trinity, one cannot forget the beauty and excitement of the bonfire. As it blazed high into the sky, people crowded around to watch and be a part of that special moment, the night before game time. Although all these preparations happened before the game, the long awaited pep rally proved to show the real enthusiasm of Trinity.

Excitement was building that week, through the parade, the bonfire and the pep rally — never reaching a climax until Friday night at Pennington Field. The football team came through with an overwhelming victory of 47-14 against South Grand Prairie. This was the final touch to a successful Homecoming at Trinity.

Originality Sets Pace of Pep Rallies

Originality, creativity, and talent, which resulted in the birth of new traditions, definitely set the pace of this year's pep rallies. At each pep rally the student body began to chant a deafening "Toobah! Toobah!" The tuba players slowly rose to their feet and performed that familiar jazz tune while the bleachers vibrated with thunderous stomping and clapping.

The MOCT's "This is Your Life" series, featuring Tommy Wilder, proved to be a humorous example of 'originality and talent.' Wilder portrayed the host of a talk show in which he interviewed people who were an important influence in a football player's life — mothers, coaches, friends, etc. These people were impersonated by other members of the MOCT. The skit provided an opportunity to laugh at two most unusual occurrences: Robert Bost playing the part of a forty-year-old mother and a Trojan football hero — namely, Randy Swain or Rusty Ingle — caught in a moment of embarrassment.

New traditions, accented by a winning football season and excessive student involvement, distinguished the 1980-81 pep rallies as different from any pep rallies ever held in the past.

Volleyballers Win Personal Victory

Determination and a fine attitude can win anyone a game. But this determination did not seem to be heading in the direction of a victory for the THS Volleyballers. Their practices during the summer and after school were long and tough, and their endurance helped them through these practices and on to the victory over Bell. They won their own personal victory by overcoming adversity.

They gained an attitude that could not be destroyed by any sort of defeat. They gained mental toughness that seemed to be substituted for their deprived victo-

They were determined to beat rival Bell, and practiced very hard to do so. The score was 15-13 in favor of Trinity, and the hard playing of Trinity and Bell was clearly seen by the close score.

All of the players benefited in gaining a better attitude, but some did gain personal triumph. Shelley Davis and Lisa Cullum were chosen for All-District second team, and the honorable mention was Kim Standridge. Beverly Holden dominated with the title of All-Tourney and received a trophy. She also achieved a position on the first team for All-District. All the girls worked hard, but these girls received their own rewards.

The coaches, Diane Innis and Janet Williamson, guided the team and occasionally relieved them of problems by their open friendliness.

The captains of the Varsity team were Shelley Davis and Lisa Cullum. And the captain for the JV team was Shelley Smith. These captains were chosen to lead the teams and set a a strong example.

They had the intellectual capacity to win and within themselves accomplished their personal victory. For some this was seen in their attitudes, and for others, it was seen in their trophies.

THS Bunts Volleyball In Victory Over Bell

The fast-moving sport of Volleyball is usually underestimated as being an easy sport. Volleyball takes fast running, long distance serving, and high jumping with a dominate hit.

It is not just a recreational sport anymore. It is a power sport. It takes tremendous strength, endurance and flexibility to play the game successfully. Many hours of individual practice are needed to achieve a good team.

The THS gym was open all summer from 9 to 11 and 2 to 4:30 every week-day from August 11 to November 3 for volleyballers to practice and improve their skills.

The sophomore team had a winning season. THS attained many good players from the junior highs which, when combined, resulted in a season of victory. All the teams traveled to compete. Many places such as Denton, Plano, and Carrolton hosted the Trojans.

Trinity was one of the four teams which competed in a scrimmage early this year. Bell, Haltom, and Richland were the other schools that competed. Trinity also hosted the Varsity and JV Tournament.

Trinity's victory over Bell was helped by the spirited crowd. "We couldn't have done it without them," exclaimed Varsity Coach Diane Innis.

Trojan Spirit Is ... Dancing on Air

With a new pair of Nikes, you could have danced all night! Or maybe all year. Many dances were held throughout the school year as a form of class spirit and good old fashion fun. Numerous organizations and the executive councils of all Above Left: Marilyn Pointer glides through the fog at one of the many dances held at Trinity. three classes sponsored the many dances during the year.

The first dance held during the school year was the Howdy Dance. This welcomed all sophomores and new students to Trinity and gave them a chance to meet many new friends. The Senior Executive Council sponsored the "Sensory Dance" of the year. They hired a D.J. to play some of the best rock music by some of the rock bands. The Rodeo Club held a Western Dance for all those folks in the mood for a little Cotton-Eyed-Joe. Also, there were numerous other types of music played.

For people who liked to dance and eat at the same time, the cheerleaders hosted a special dance for this purpose. It was catered by Eli's Pizza with plenty of music to go along with it. The Homecoming Dance was promoted by Student Council. The theme was the same as that of the parade: "Our Heroes Have Always Been Trojans." Each and every dance was a roaring success. All class councils and organizations put their best feet forward to produce a year of marvelous school dances.

Lady Cagers Strive To Improve Skills

The members of the Trinity Girl's Basketball Team prepared for a tough season this year. synchronization. Height is considered to be a great advantage, too. Senior Susan Cordell, at six feet and five inches, proved to be a remarkable asset to the Trinity Trojan women's basketball team. She played an outstanding game and was a high scorer.

Even though much effort was exerted, the outcome of the season fell short of expectations. The Trinity girl's basketball team finished the season 8 and 22. Despite the outcome of the year, Coach Nitcholas felt that times would be better next year and the team would improve.

The 1981 season was the first at Trinity for Nitcholas. Although he hoped for a better season record, Nitcholas looked at the year in a positive manner. "I think we did some good. We're also trying to establish a good program for future years," he said.

J.V. Girls Capture Second Position

The future prospects for the Trinity girl's varsity basketball team are the members of the J.V. team. These girls have put forth a vast amount of effort in order to place Trinity among the top J.V. teams in the district.

New Coach Jim Wells stated that the overall attitude of the team was extremely good. He felt that this attitude contributed greatly to the success of the season.

season were recognized as Merry Williams, Renae Weaver, and Deanne Cavaness. These girls have worked hard to achieve this goal. Much of their spare time was spent practicing in the gym, improving their athletic abilities.

The team had many important wins, which accounted for their eventual success. Coach Wells felt that the team's most significant wins were their two victories over Bell. The THS girl's J.V. basketball team finished the season with spectacular results, placing second in the district behind Duncanville.

It is hoped that the JV team will provide the needed experience to assist the varsity in the '81-'82 season. In addition to providing this experience, the members of the JV team provided themselves with personal improvement by their record during this season.

Club Initiation: Becoming Involved

Becoming a part of Trinity organizations can be an intense ordeal. To start off the school year many organizations held an annual initiation which allowed their members to feel like an important part of the group. The victims usually consisted of upperclassmen who were not initiated the previous year and sophomores.

Some groups held this spectacular event at a devoted member's house, while others settled for decorating the new members at school. Trinity has upheld a tradition of holding initiations in a mature manner without hazing or humiliating abuse.

The swim team forced the new swimmers to wear signs to school for the entire day. This showed that they had become an active part of the Trojan swim team.

The band initiation proved to be not as harsh this year as usual. The rookies filed into a room where they listened to a serious speech concerning the traditions of the Trojan band. They then went outside to hear the band president, Jeff Cottrell, lecture them on discipline, dedication and responsibility. Subjugation to films of past marching contests followed this speech. Afterwards, the new members attended a party in their honor.

This may be a trying period for some, but the yearly initiations show the enthusiasm, spirit and participation needed to become a part of the Trinity organizations.

Impressive JV Gains Valuable Experience

Impressive may very well be the best one-word description of the 1980-1981 Trojan J.V. cagers. The team consisted of Willie Henderson, Ricky Faulkner, Matt Graves, Kevin Dutton, Arthur Franzke, Walt Zartman, Reuben Culmsee, Kyle Above: Trojan Jay Fitch becomes airborne in an attempt to penetrate the key. Leaping over a defending L.D. Bell Blue Raider, Jay eyes both his teammates and the basket for a possible scoring opportunity.

Couch, David Hertberg, and Jay Fitch.

The B-team proved to be very strong by boasting a great record that registered twenty-four wins with only five defeats. Throughout the season, they controlled many of their games by great ball handling and precision shooting. The J.V. team often dominated their opponent not only in height, but in pure strength. Many times this young and exuberant team seemed overly matched against formidable foes on the basketball court. Regardless of the odds, predictions, or opposing team build-up, pressure did not seem to bother this squad. They went out and played hard in every single game.

The attitude, knowledge, and skill seen in this Trojan B-team is an accumulation from past work and training. All of the J.V. players worked long and hard to improve themselves before every game during the season. This often exhausting and sometimes fun training proved to help form and bring out new and improved talents and skills in each individual on the team.

The overall season provided the young Trojan cagers with valuable experience and education. Through many situations in practices and games, this B-team gained knowledge to be used in future games in a Trinity uniform. This in itself is the main objective of a J.V. squad.

Returning players, with their newlyacquired skills and talents, will once again face their old opponents. Some will represent the Trojan Varsity team and will be confronted with new goals and challenges. That which has been accomplished on the B-team will help shape future outcomes on the scoreboard above the basketball court at Trinity.

Pressure Often Too Close For Comfort

Pressure seemed to be a black cloud that almost always followed the 1980-1981 Trojan Varsity basketball team. There were so many close games, that many Trojan fans bit their nails down to almost nothing in the course of the seaAbove: Senior Robert Bost drives to the boards against L.D. Bell. Despite often playing good heads-up ball, the pressure sometimes seemed overwhelming. Coach Paul Ingle stated that the team "played everyone good," but unfortunately "lost the close games."

In the beginning of the season, the team started off with a bang. The Trojans defeated their first five opponents by a tremendous total of 62 points. Then the nail-biting, heart-pounding games began to settle in. The Trojans lost to Haltom by three, Arlington by two, and Richardson by one. In six close games, the margin of defeat totaled to a mere 15 points.

Probably the most heart-breaking of all of the close games was the one-point loss in the final game of the season to L.D. Bell. After playing catch-up throughout the first half of the game, the Trojans finally took control in the third quarter. With some strong clutch shooting by Paul Rice the Varsity had the lead of 38-37 going into the final quarter. Despite some extra effort by Steve Cook, Paul Rice, and Robert Bost, the scoreboard had L.D. Bell on top 45-44 when the final buzzer sounded. This finale only proved to be representative of the 1980-1981 Trojan Varsity season.

Throughout the season of ups and downs, the Varsity squad represented Trinity as well as always. They fought hard in every game and played every opponent well. Although they did not go as far as had been hoped in every Trojan mind, they still had a place in every Trojan heart.

Outstanding Effort In Enjoyable Season

Spirit and dedication helped carry the Trojan Varsity Basketball Team through their 1980-1981 season. The varsity squad consisted of juniors Kirk Curry, Dan DeMarque, Rick Ford, Steve King, Paul Rice, Jerry Scott, John Martin, and Left: A combination of talent and strong will could often be seen in returning letterman Steve Cook. manager Scott Castleberry. Seniors included Gary McLeod, Paul Fields, David Harrison, Steve Cook, Robert Bost, and Scott Flynn. Only letterman Steve Cook returned from the year before.

After a long, tough year consisting of 36 games, the Varsity concluded their season with a record of 20 victories and 16 defeats. During the course of the season the team participated in several tournaments and gained well-deserved attention. In these tournaments they were awarded three trophies. Two second-place trophies and a consolation trophy were received for their outstanding efforts.

There were also several outstanding individual successes among the team. Senior Scott Flynn earned the honor to be chosen as a 1980-1981 all district player. Scott had a cool hand in the clutch and boasted the team high-scoring average of 14.6 points a game. Not only did he score points, but he also proved to be a play-maker. Scott led the team in assists with an average of 4.9 a game.

Up in the rafters of the gym, the tall men took control. Keeping the ball in play off the backboards helped the Trojans in many games. Senior Steve Cook led the team in rebounds with an average of 9.1 per game. Close behind him was junior Paul Rice and senior Robert Bost.

Throughout the season, individual success and team success could often be seen. Despite the fine talent and good record, this 1980-1981 basketball season proved to lack a special ingredient needed in a championship season. Nevertheless, the varsity competed well and added fun and excitement to an enjoyable basketball season.

Hard Work Earns New Uniforms

Shining through, the smile can be seen many hours of hard work and dedication. Accompanying the devotion in every Troy-Ann there exists an everlasting liveliness. Each member of this very special group of young ladies is dedicated and a credit to Trinity.

In the past decade, styles have come and gone. Until this year though, the style of dress for the Trinity Troy-Anns had stayed relatively the same. Throughout the past eleven years the Troy-Anns have patiently awaited the time in which to acquire new uniforms. Finally their dedication and hard work paid off.

Above: Up with the sun, Troy-Anns take to the school parking lot to practice their next routine. They often worked out long before many students attended their first period class.

For the 1980-1981 year the Troy-Anns were furnished with a different look. Mr. B. J. Murray provided the money from school funds to supply the drill team with their brand new uniforms. Along with being in style, they are also very versatile because of their many interchangeable components. According to the situation, the uniforms can be used in 20 different ways. Also they are more flattering to each Troy-Ann. Many thanks have been expressed to everyone involved in acquiring this much deserved new attire.

Devotion and hard work paid off in many other ways throughout the year. Troy-Anns could often be seen practicing in the school parking lot while students were coming to classes. For this, the drill team attracted worthy attention. The Troy-Anns won Sweepstakes during a contest in March and were named Outstanding Team for the second year in a row.

Perhaps the best way to sum up the Troy-Anns was expressed by team sponsor, Mrs. Beverly Skipper. She stated that "being in the Troy-Anns does for young ladies what organized sports do for young men. The girls gain confidence, learn responsibility, learn to take criticism, and learn manners. These are all things which will help them develop into mature and well-adjusted young people, able to handle whatever life may throw their way, which is the purpose of education and of being in a group such as this. When all the marching, dancing, practicing, uniforms, and demerits are gone, these things are what remain."

Fall Triune: Big Change From The Past

"You Need It!" But in August? Yes, in August. There was a slight change in the delivery of the Triune. Unlike in the past, when the book always came out in the spring, this year's edition became a summer delivery yearbook.

"You Need it" signs were hung throughout the halls during yearbook sales to provide an overall atmosphere of the school year memories. All members of yearbook staff participated as shown by Terrisa Cowart and Cathy Roy.

In spite of the sudden change, the sales were very successful. An average of sixteen hundred books were sold to students and faculty. The books were ordered and sold in homeroom classes at a cost of fifteen dollars each. Those who did not pay for their book or did not order one were given the chance to do so the following morning. The books ordered and not paid for were sold on a first come, first serve basis. There were no spring sales.

The main goal of the Triune staff was to faithfully record one year at Trinity. For the past two years, Columbia Scholastic Press Association has presented Trinity High School with a number one rating on a superior book. Only eight to ten schools in the nation receive such a high rank on their yearbook.

Numerous students gave their opinion on why they bought a Triune. Here are a few comments: "To remember the fun and all of my friends," said junior, Tradonna Collins. "For memories of the past," said sophomore Tarron Gosson.

Muscle Men Conquer The Wrestling Mat

Tremendous strength and ability was always demonstrated by the Trojan Wrestling Team. The one-on-one competition between men is becoming popular among dedicated athletes. Individuals strive to be the dominant man. Through the strenuous workouts this domination can be achieved.

During the toilsome practices, the wrestlers concentrated on their techniques. Such techniques consisted of the three-quarter Nelson, half Nelson, cross-body ride, and the wizzar, only a few of many hold methods drilled on.

The wrestling team can be broken into weight classes, starting at lightweight of ninety-eight pounds to heavyweight of over 185 pounds. Each man fits into one class and competes against the others of his own weight division. Every team tries to fill each weight division, but sometimes this cannot be possible. Therefore, not filling one or several of these weight divisions, will affect the team's scores dramatically.

How the team can score is determined by several positions held. A "take down" scores two points, a "reversal" means moving from bottom to the top of an opponent and also scores two points. Another technique, the "pin fall" determined by both shoulders pinned to the mat and receives two points. The match is considered over in a "fall" case, such as, a "near fall," which receives two or three points depending on the time the opponent's shoulders are held to the mat. An "escape" is getting out from under an opponent and scores only one point. So, the strength and aggressiveness contribute to a remarkably, astounding sport proved by the Trojan's wrestling team.

T.H.S. "Pins" State Ruffu, Keffer State-Ranked Among Texas Wrestlers

The grapplers grasped on to a clutching victory for the 1980-81 season at Trinity. The Trojan wrestlers strived to reach their goals. Their aims were to finish high in state and to have an individual champion. The team again came out on top of their goal. Next year the team is striving for a team state championship and a consistent challenger for the same. Coach Albert Maxwell and the team felt very confident about reaching this goal. With the "... endurance, agility, fellowship, and confidence the team has, we will improve and continue to win" stated Coach Maxwell.

The Trinity wrestling team had two top contenders at the state championships. One contender was junior Bruce Keffer, who ranked third in state. At a 170 pounds, he held a record of thirty-five wins and five losses. Bruce won two first places, two second places, two third places, and one fourth place. Coach Maxwell felt that "Bruce would be one of our state champions next year."

Another superior wrestler was senior John Ruffu. John, at 158 pounds, won the state championship this year. He was voted "The Outstanding Wrestler" at the Mid-Cities tournament. John held a predominate record of thirty-five wins and one loss. He won six first places and one second place which truly earned his title of state champion. When his coach was asked his opinion of John, he stated that "John has a future in college wrestling and might, someday, honor us in international wrestling."

All the Trojan wrestlers showed excellent stamina throughout the season. Each wrestler displayed an impressive record to contribute to the victorious season. The true sportsmanship and dedication reflected an excellent job done by the wrestlers of Trinity.

Many New Teachers Active At Trinity

Largest Group In School's History

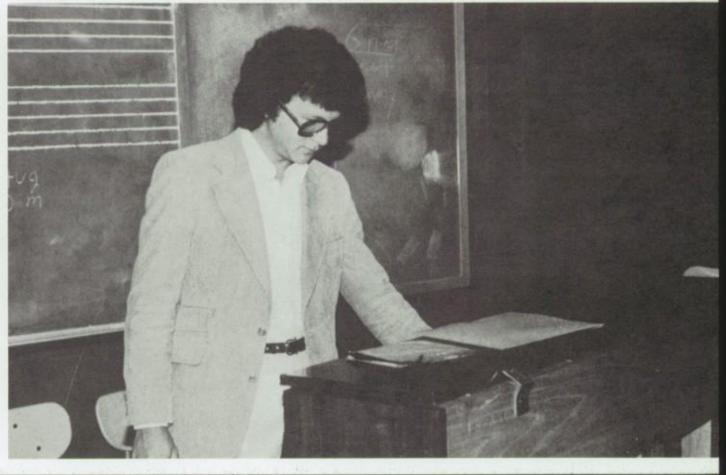

Why are there new teachers? For fairly obvious reasons we get a new group of teachers every year. Many teachers quit for other jobs, and then there is always those who have to quit to become new mothers. This year many new positions Front Row: Alice Adams, Leslie Detamore, and Diana Keown. Second Row: Marcia Walker, Gerry Woods, Susie Yeatts, and Barbara Ratts. Back Row: Charlie Sanders, Alyson Johnson, Carol Sieverling, Bill Nitcholas, Albert Maxwell, Jim Wells, and Monte Miller.

were created when the change to semesters occurred.

Nearly one third of Trinity's faculty has been hired within the last two years. This year's list of new teachers has far exceeded any other year at Trinity. There were seventeen new members to add to the faculty list which consisted of English, History, Science, and Math teachers along with the many new coaches of the year.

The new additions to this outstanding faculty were, Alice Adams, Leslie Detamore, Alyson Johnson, Diana Keown, Joseph Kovach, Albert Maxwell, Monte Miller, Bill Nitcholas, Rick Park, Barbara Ratts, Charlie Sanders, Carol Sieverling, Karen Tillman, Marcie Walker, Jim Wells, Janet Williamson, Gerry Woods and Susie Yeatts.

Many of the new teachers were also active in organizations. Monte Miller sponsored the newspaper, Gerry Woods student council sponsor, Barbara Ratts sophomore class sponsor, and Rick Park was the band's Assistant director.

'80 Trojans Ignite

What do you get when you see someone wearing a hat, sunglasses and the grossest clothes in the world? You're right, a spirited Trojan during Spirit Week. This year Trinity had two Spirit Weeks. next Spirit Week lasted from February 4th thru the 6th. Both Spirit Weeks occurred before Trinity played L. D. Bell in football and basketball, respectively.

The first Spirit Week started off with Trinity students wearing their grossest clothes to school with Monday being

Gross-Out Bell Day. At 8:40, Tuesday became known as Hat Day, with students wearing anything from baseball caps to army helmets. When Wednesday arrived, Trinity had two events going on. Not only was it College T-shirt Day, with students wearing shirts supporting their favorite colleges. It was also Hush Button Day for girls. If a girl talked to a guy, and she had on a Hush Button, she lost her button to the guy she was talking to. Thursday also had two events happening at once. This time the guys wore Hush Buttons plus all Trojans wore their version of sunglasses to help Shade-Out Bell. Friday ended the week with Red and Black Day. Trinity students showed their spirit by wearing red and black clothes to school. One of Trinity's elite groups, Men of Company T (MOCT), helped pass out carnations that students had bought from teachers the week before.

The next Spirit Week occurred three days before Trinity played Bell in basketball. Wednesday saw Trojans wearing their clothes backward and/or inside out. Thursday everyone wore their western clothes and turned roper for a day. As with other Spirit Weeks, Friday ended it with it being Red and Black Day.

Swimmers Succeed

Can you imagine getting up early in the morning, when it is still dark outside, and going to school? The Trinity swimmers have done this all year. They worked out every morning and afternoon. The long, hard hours helped build the strong swimmer.

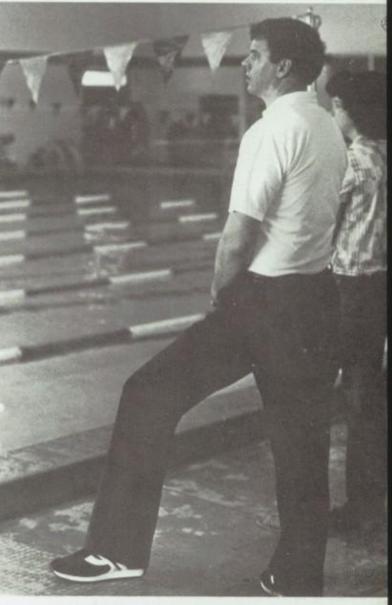

The actual swimming season did not start until December. But strenuous workouts, starting in September, helped Top Left: Chris McDonald contributing to a Trojan Victory with sideline whistling. Top Right: Rob Hodges waiting a time after a good swim. Above: Power off the blocks provides a quick start for Scott Smith and John Sepanski.

The dry-land exercises started everything. Stretching, running and weight lifting were a few of the many exercises. Swimming in the afternoons and exercising in the morning only lasted about three weeks.

Then it happened. The inevitable had come. September 6th — morning workouts began. The dedicated swimmers worked from 6:45 till 8:30 a.m. only to look forward to a long day of school, which ended with one of Coach Dave Stroble's hard workouts.

The swimmers averaged three thousand to forty-five hundred yards a workout, building to five or six thousand yards which is equivalent to three or four miles a practice.

The tired swimmers, after building endurance and strength, went headstrong into the season being very successful. The results from the District meet were not unusual. Both the girls and the guys won District for the 13th consecutive year. The results from Regionals were excellent also. The guys came out with second while the girls tied for third. Both the girls and guys were well represented at the state meet with ten swimmers participating. The Trinity swimmers had a very successful year.

Successful Divers Take The "Plunge"

Diving? Oh, anyone can do that! But can they? There is more to diving than one may think. It is not only bouncing on the board and jumping off, but it requires the skill of a gymnast and the graceful movement of a dancer. Concentration Left: Various emotions are seen at swim meets David Dorcus concentrates on an upcoming event during an important high school swim meet. Above: Joe Kalbfleish exhibits his butterfly stroke with grace and strength.

also has a large part to do with the dive. From the moment the diver steps on the board till he completes the dive, he concentrates on his approach, his form, and the actual dive.

A diver's requirements differ from meet to meet. At dual meets one must perform six dives, one of which must be taken from a list of required dives. This list includes front dive, back dive, inward dive, reverse dive, and twisting dive. At championship meets such as District, Regionals and State, the diver must perform eleven dives. Five of those dives are required from the list and the other six are optional or the diver's choice.

The divers are scored on their performance by three or five judges depending on the meet. They are scored on a scale from one to ten. The total of the scores is then multiplied by the degree of difficulty, which is assigned to each dive. In order to determine the place, all the scores are totaled together.

A lot of time is spent on diving. Long practices, failures, and determination are all part of diving. The Trinity divers work hard to develop their form and perfect their dive. They have a big handicap though, they have no coach. A few of the divers go to Dallas or Fort Worth twice a week for additional help. They have worked hard and have done well.

Campus "Hot Spots" THS Grounds Provide Chances to Relax

Everyone deserves a break from life's tedious strain, and students at Trinity were no exception. Many students used this year's increased lunch periods as a chance to lounge around and catch up on the latest gossip.

The campus thrived with ideal spots to do just that. The grassy area between the Fine Arts Building and the cafeteria proved to be a popular place of refuge. Large rocks provided a comfortable sitting area, and tall trees provided an adequate shelter.

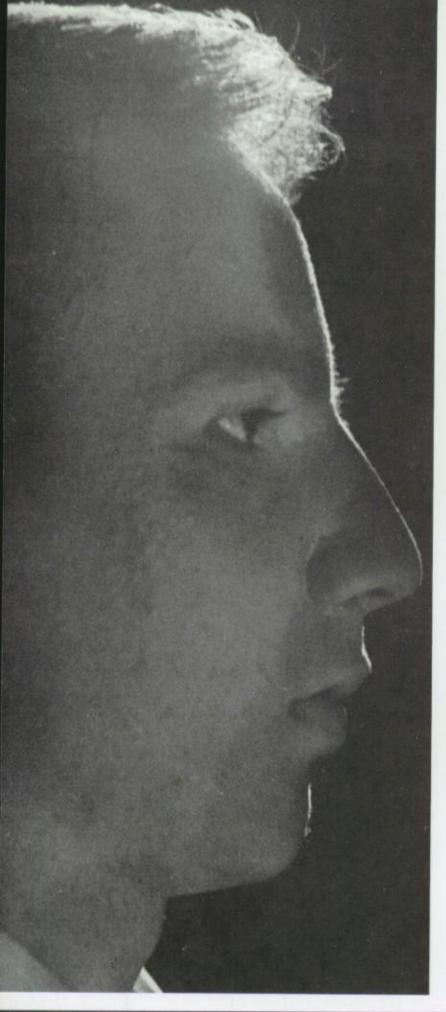

Some students retreated to the mall area and its concrete benches. If the weather chose not to cooperate, the lobby of the Academic Building, the ledge under the display case, or the locker banks furnished a desirable environment in which to congregate. Many took advantage of the parking lot before, after, and in between school hours to throw an occasional party or two.

Frequently, one could catch a frisbee being thrown in front of the Fine Arts Building. The tennis courts and raquetball courts furnished hours of enjoyment and exercise during and after school. The grassy area between the Fine Arts Building and the Physical Education Building proved to be a popular place to meet and became known as "jock rock". Under any circumstances, Trinity students could always manage to find the ideal "hot spot" for constructively passing the time.

"Do re me fa so la ti do . . . Let's start at the very beginning . . . " And what a strange beginning this was. "The Sound of Music" was not found on the agenda in September. The musical which was originally scheduled for presentation was "Bye, Bye Birdie."

Somewhere amid the hustle and bustle, plans were changed. Mrs. Schronk and Mrs. Townsend, the stage and vocal directors respectively, became aware of the abundance of talent with which they had to work. They realized that in order to produce the best show possible, maximum use of this potential was essential. Utilization of the large number of gifted students would not occur in "Bye, Bye Birdie." Thus, it was decided to find a script which would take advantage of all these available gifts.

The cast fit into the "Sound of Music" mold beautifully. This rare opportunity was not allowed to slip away. The change of scripts provided a wider outlet of expression for a larger cast of characters. Excitement rapidly sprouted and grew in the Fine Arts Department. The combined efforts and determination of the drama, choral, music, and art departments resulted in an accomplished goal in a successful manner.

The Stage is Alive With Sound of Music

Just like the hills, the stage came to life with the "Sound of Music." The cast, equipped with an abundance of vocal talent, filled the auditorium with resonating sound.

the direction of Mr. Tom Neugent, kept everything flowing and blending smoothly. They provided the finesse which made the production so professional.

Various individuals put parts of themselves into their songs, and thus, the result was unique and personal. Cheryl Blocker helped provide a large amount of the music. The emotion she put into Maria's songs was genuine. Maria's love for music and life was vividly portrayed.

These feelings were exemplified in such songs as "The Sound of Music," "Do-Re-Mi," and "My Favorite Things." The nuns led by Donna Burleson's strong voice in the role of the Mother Abyss, even sang of the exuberance found in Maria.

Much enthusiasm was sparked by Cheryl and her interpretation of Maria. Dan Hall played a vibrant recipient of her affections and recipricated in a powerful fashion. His deep voice complimented Cheryl's and together they made the ideal couple. The children also shared this joy. The numbers they performed were full of life, and the audience enjoyed them. The youngest member of the cast, Kathleen Early, continually received attention for her antics. The poignant duet of Tracey Farney and Kevin Kyrish in particular, touched many hearts.

The support of Chip Davis and Dori Swyhart to Dan Hall and Cheryl Blocker made for a very well-rounded show. The talents of all these people together created melodious sounds that will long be remembered when the "Sound of Music" is recalled.

THS Varsity Soccer Overcomes Obstacles

"Soccer is for kicks," not to mention stiff competition, bruises, and long hours of practice. Soccer, one of the least-recognized sports on campus, required yearround practice and competition. The Trojans took advantage of an optional club Above: Senior Scott Humphrey, a well-seasoned Trojan soccer player of three years, attempts to steal the ball from a Grand Prairie Gopher. league in the fall and competed for district in the spring, so their year was divided into two seasons.

While in the club league, the Trinity soccer players were known as the HEB Stars. They finished that season with a respectable record and began competing for district in March. In November the varsity participated in the Cotton Cup Tournament in Dallas. Throughout the year, the varsity played about thirty games — eight district and the rest club league games.

Coach Albert Maxwell had never instructed soccer before coming to Trinity this year. When asked about the soccer season, Maxwell responded: "The season had its ups and downs. It really took me too long to get my feet wet." He coached wrestling at another high school and came to Trinity to take on both sports at once. In spite of disadvantages,

Strengthening Of JV Marks 80-81 Season

The JV 'kicked' the season off to a good start this year. In spite of inexperienced players and an inexperienced coach, the Trojan soccer players built a solid season. were participating in the club team competition. Just as the varsity they were known as the HEB Stars.

When the time to compete for district arrived, the JV combined their talents into one team. The number of players on the combined team was twenty-two. Since eleven players make a team, the competition was strong within the Trojans themselves. They played eight district games and about twenty others, sometimes averaging as many as three games a week.

In the spring a professional soccer team, the Dallas Tornadoes, came to Trinity to conduct a seminar and to give the Trojans some hints to improve their game. The Tornadoes gave Trinity a chance to match their skills against the pros by playing them.

When Coach Maxwell was asked about instructing soccer for the first time, he commented on how "it is rewarding to watch the kids mature through the season." The JV has put together a great season which shows much promise for next year as they reach toward even higher goals.

Seasons Reflect Concern

A mood of happiness prevailed any day of the week on the Trinity campus. But at certain times throughout the year, this joy of life was captured and punctuated. Holidays provided an opportunity to celebrate and share the good times with friends.

Halloween opened the holiday season with a mischevious air. Masks became a favorite form of attire. Among the pranks and mischief a ray of kindness shone brightly. The Child Development Top: Teri Kuhn plays with one of the children during the Child Development Halloween Party. Above Left: Betty Wilcox delivers a carnation to Colleen Kelly. classes visited nursery children on a weekly basis, and for Halloween, a party was given.

Thanksgiving this year was a memorable occasion with the originating of a new fad. Turkey Teachers became the favorite topic of conversation. The Student Council teamed up with the faculty to coordinate this activity in order to raise money for the Teacher's Scholarship Fund. Votes were cast in the form of penny ballots. Any coinage of greater value deducted votes. The competition proved tough with good showings from Mrs. Monks, Mr. Norris, Mr. Barney, Doc Fisk, Mrs. Stepp, Mr. Neugent, and Mrs. Schronk, but Mr. Moore deservingly won the title of Turkey Teacher of 1980.

Christmas was anticipated with its typical fervor because of the break from school its arrival always promises. The spirit of the season was seen in a number of classrooms as decorations appeared and cans of food for the canned food drive stacked up in the corners. Santa even put in an appearance so that students could have their picture made with him or one of his little elves.

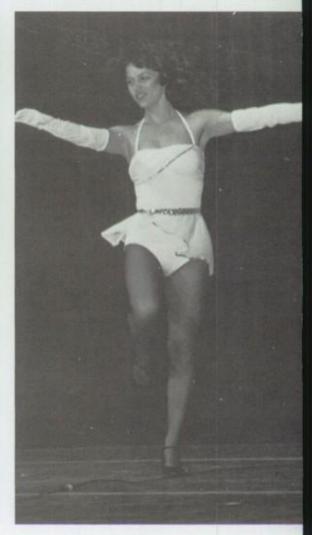

The annual blood drive, sponsored by HOSA and the Carter Blood Bank, supplied the chance for many people to give of themselves in a very literal fashion. This Christmas many students and teachers gave the gift of life.

Valentine's Day sparked many a lover's heart into action. Carnations, kisses, valentines, and sing-o-grams were readily sold. Students and teachers alike never seemed to tire of showing their affection for their loved ones and friends in a variety of manners. The different holidays provided a wide range of outlets for the expressions which were shown.

Talented Trojans 'Strut Their Stuff'

Dance, comedy, magic, and music all played a vital part in creating the 1980-81 Talent Show at Trinity High School. This spectacular exhibit of talent was sponsored by the THS Drama Department and coordinated by Mrs. Jan Schronk.

Mrs. Schronk had the difficult task of choosing which acts would appear in the actual show. Approximately 35 acts were auditioned and the number was narrowed to 21. When auditioning, the acts were screened for polished performance, variety, preparedness, and what would appeal to the student body.

In order to tie the acts together, members of the Drama Department choreographed dance scenes following the theme of "Fame." According to Mrs. Schronk, "The acts that were used to tie the show together were excellent. Both Pat Culbert and Kyle Rivers worked hard to choreograph them."

There was a wide variety of acts ranging from music to magic. Not many students realized that Jimmy Corder and Randy Swain had musical talent as well as football talent. They sang "Take It Easy." Trinity's newest drill team, the Gossipettes, was an immediate success with their routine entitled "Greased Lightning."

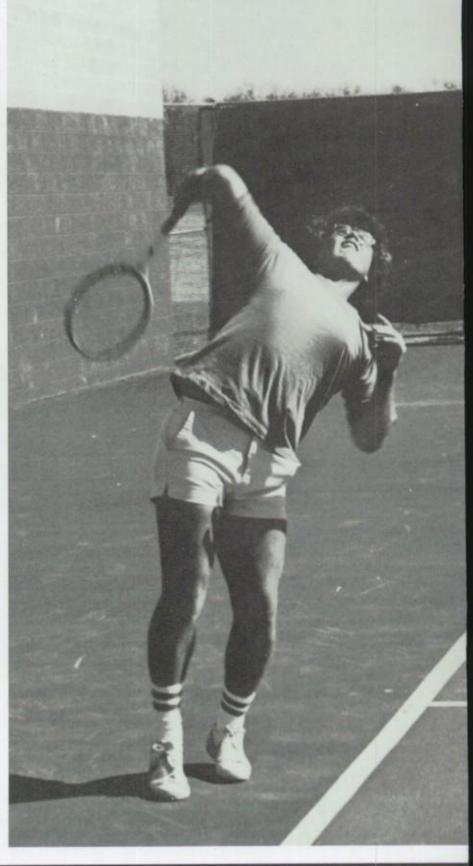

The mood in the audience was subdued as the singing talent of Trinity emerged. Dan Hall's version of "Lady" brought tears to the eyes of the romantics in the audience, but they were soon dried away by the "toe-tapping" tunes of a trio consisting of Amy Hickfang, Natalie Warren, and Rachel Wilson.

The show ended on an upbeat note as the Production cast performed the theme song "Fame". The dancers along with lead singer Julie Hazzard portrayed the true professionalism of the THS Drama Department.

Netters Work Hard Throughout The Year

Come rain or shine, wind or cold, the tennis team could be found working-out all through the year. If for some reason the courts could not be used, the jump Top Left: Elisa Seger plays a very precise game of tennis. Left: Jon Parrish awaits the return from his opponent. ropes were brought out and sit-up stations were started. If it was too cold or wet outside, the Euless Civic Center was invaded by troups of Trinity tennis players. Basketball and ping pong tournaments were soon underway.

On a sunny day the courts could be found humming with activity. The team busied themselves with their drills. Running laps and lines were typical forms of keeping agile. Serves, overheads, and volleys were practiced diligently. The players teamed up and played together or had challenge matches for a top spot on the ladder. After hours of hard work and sweating and tanning, there was the agony of picking up those stupid little yellow balls within a certain time limit or the threat of running an extra set of lines was put into effect.

Despite the intense competition between individuals that tennis involves, Trinity's team managed to maintain a unity and closeness not common to many teams. The many hours spent together on the courts caused lasting friendships to develop and flourish.

District Competition Finds Team In Third

The tennis team had a successful year in many aspects. Not only did the team qualify well in the district meet but the experience of being on the team in general enriched the lives of all involved.

Those receiving the All-District honors were: Kelly and Mindy Hobart and Tim Brown. The Hobart sisters as a doubles team placed second and thus qualified for the regional meet. Tim Brown finished third in the men's singles and was an alternate for the regional meet. Overall, the team had much success finishing third in the district meet.

The team's success was not measured in wins alone. The high degree of unity and the quality of the members' attitude tell of greater success. Coach Cal Hopkins made it a point to stress the importance of a healthy attitude, good sportsmanship and team pride. A family atmosphere resulted among team members. Players took an interest in each other's lives on and off the courts. When a player's birthday came around a traditional "surprise" party was thrown. Drive-in movies were also a popular past time with the team.

Many tournaments were entered individually, but quite a few were entered by the team as a whole. These two areas of competition as a team and as an individual, gave the team members a taste of "both worlds" and thus, a realization of the importance of holding one's own and working as a part of a group was brought about.

THS Band Marches To Another I Rating

"Come on you weenies, you've been smokin' too much!" was often heard by the THS Marching Band at rehearsal, often when the directors were upset because of the lack of sound due to the tired bodies of each member. The work Top: John Krone and George O'Brien play duet in "Echano." Above Left: Drum Major Sharon Clark. Above Right: Tuba player Mike Harris played "Tuba" several times for an appreciative crowd at pep rallies.

every morning at 8:00 and every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon from 3:40 to 5;40 was long, hard, and very tedious. Drum Major Sharon Clark made a cliche out of "back to entry . . . MOVE!"

But something within each band member kept them going through the blaring sun, the cold soggy grass and mud, and the blistering wind to present the best show possible from halftime shows to the UIL Marching Contest. What makes the bandmembers do it? Pride and tradition. Why do you think the soloists bow after their solos? And why do you think they take pride in saying "Trinity" when asked what school they're from? Tradition includes inspection before every performance which means hats must be combed, horns shined, polished shoes and white socks, and uniform and overlays clean.

There is nothing like the feeling when you are marching off the field at halftime to a respectful audience. After halftime, Mr. Neugent, the director, was always flooded with compliments on the band's performance. The judges at the UIL Marching Contest agreed, giving the Trojan Band a I rating.

All of the hard practices detailed, detailed inspections, and halftime shows come down to that one opportunity for a perfect show when all of the members strived for the same goal — a reward for their sharpness and precision. And if the I rating did not achieve that goal, walking away from that stadium knowing that the Trinity High School Marching Band was the best band there did.

Musicians Dominate Region With Talent

Tired lips and worn fingers began in September for many band members in preparation for Region Orchestra tryouts on November 8 at Lamar High School. At this audition, select people had the opportunity to tape for State.

Left: Band members often faced the evening shadows as their strenous practice came to an end. Right: The top chairs of Region Band were selected for Area so auditions were very crucial.

Many hours were put into the etudes which included hour after hour of aggravating practice, private lessons, and playoffs for Mr. Neugent to get accustomed to playing in front of the judges.

All-Region Band tryouts were held at Brewer High School on December 13. Again, Trinity dominated these auditions with 31 members. This was the highest number of people to make the band from any one school. When these 31 band members auditioned for Region Band, they also tried out for Area. THS had 11 students make Area.

Members of the All-State Band and Orchestra were selected for their musical talent. They were given scholarships for colleges and the opportunity to use their talent in a very rewarding career. Six people from Trinity made State. They took a plane to San Antonio for the concert which was open to the public.

Members of the All-State Band and Orchestra were Sharon Clark, Brenda Ernest, Jeff Cottrell, Robert Hill, Ronnie Dreyer, and Sherry Rawls. All-Region Orchestra members included Richard Lyle, Ronnie Dreyer, Randy Howard, Brenda Ernest, Bart Thompson, Sharon Clark, Brandi Robinson, Kim Wells, and Sherry Rawls.

Between all these tryouts and auditions, band members always found time to laugh and enjoy. They worked endlessly throughout the year from marching season to the Spring Concert in May.

Gifted Band Members Perform Triumphantly

People see the Flag Corps, Drum Corps, and the Twirlers as three of the most honored and visible groups at THS. But it does not come easy. practicing before and after school occupied much of their time. Perfecting their skill filled their minds in preparation for the Color Guard Competition held at Lamar High School on November 15. The Flag Corps received second place and the Drum Corps came home with first place. The Flag Corps consisted of captain Stephanie Farmer, Alice Chappell, lieutenant Danee Nichols, Karen Gilliland, Alicia Dickinson, Amanda Wallace, Rhonda Dillman, Debbie Brooks, Cheryl Christman, Kelly Jones, Shara Sheppard, Dena Mojica, Stephanie Turner, Sandy Dunn, Darlene Brown, and Brenda Ernest.

The Drum Corps members were Jeff Higham, Ricky Zimmerman, Bobby

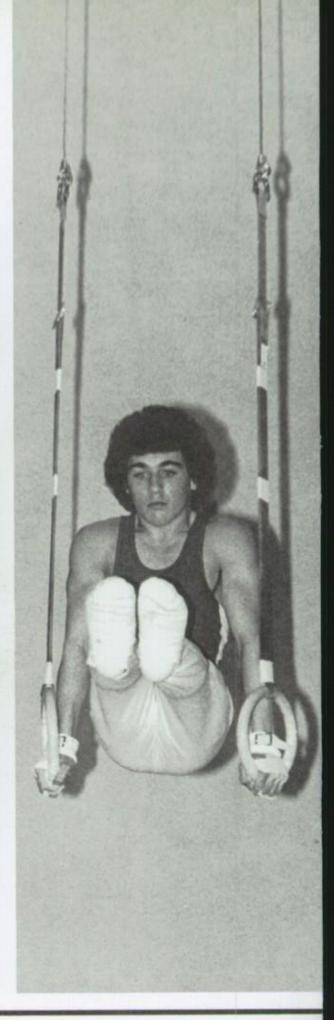

Payton, Gregg Holbert, Kim Wells, Blane Womble, Ricky Morgan, Lonnie Oreman, Vikki Wasson, Karen Montya, Honey Nesburg, Kevin Owens, Greg Cramer, Kyle Rivers, Jeff Cox, and Dale Tromaheuser.

The Twirlers were hard-working individuals that seemed to smile about everything. They were Delisa Early, Connie Wallace, Shannon Henson, Missy Johnson, Patty Prikryl, and Angela Williams. They received a first place trophy when they competed at the University of Dallas in November.

Those who made the Region Band were Ronnie Dreyer, Mark Moore, Marc Miles, Billy Harper, Tyler Adkins, Shannon Henson, Debbie Brooks, Brenda Ernest, Brandi Robinson, Danny Brashear, Sam Samudio, Joe Gouyton, Robert Shorkey, Richard Lyle, Sharon Clark, Laura Lepro, Robert Hill, Alison Short, Randy Riley, Randy Howard, Kim Wells, Darrell Bean, James Collins, Sharry Rawls, Charles Renfro, Leigh Ebbesmeyer, Cathi Quick, Jeff Higham, Jeff Cottrell, Mike Batchelor, and Kurtis Kizer.

Tumblers Take It All

Is Gymnastics just doing routines . . . ? No, gymnastics consists of rolls, flips, twists, turns, leaps, lunges, swings . . . and that's only the beginning! Gymnastics, made up of a mens and womens team, compete in their own events. There are six different mens events which all take an outstanding quality to be a fine performer.

One of the more well-known events for men, the still rings, takes incredible strength. To hold one's body weight for so long, plus doing the stunts, and getting them done right makes for a hard workout for the contender. As for the parallel bars, they take swing. Without being able to swing your body, it would be virtually impossible to complete a routine. The high bar on the other hand is very different; it takes swing, but the most important element is a good grip. Without a good grip, the high bar can be extremely dangerous.

The floor exercise is for those who do not have to "stop and take a break." It is a 2 to 2½ minute routine of constant moving and strenuous tricks, and at the same time you must show control, balance and form. As for vaulting you must take a considerable run and be able to exert punch off the board and, with your hands, exert a similar punch off the horse. The pommel horse takes flexibility and arm strength, as well as balance.

There are four womens events that are equally as difficult as the mens. First, the balance beam takes exactly what the name suggests . . . balance. Without balance one cannot exert tricks or dance on the beam. This event takes complete and unbroken concentration. The uneven parallel bars are an extremely tough event. Women have to be strong and have tight muscles to compete well on this event. Vaulting for the women is about the same as mens vaulting, except women vault crossways on the horse instead of lengthwise. The last event, floor, consists of grace and beauty. One must be able to tumble and perform stunts as well as be graceful!

Looking For A Ten?

The 1981 Trojan gymnastics teams were only two of the most highly competitive teams in the area. However, dreams of being state champions were ruined by rival school, L.D. Bell. The women's team started with only a handful of returning members and quite a few sophomores that had never experienced high school competition. The team led by seniors Kara Hill, Teri Kuhn, Misty Polk, and Debi Howard worked out strenuously all year to gain their qualification for the state meet.

Junior Melissa McCoy and sophomore Shari Willis also competed throughout the entire year. The women's team was Above: Kerry West exhibits a handstand on the parallel bars. coached by Ms. Barbara Ratts. Although the women's team was plagued with injuries, they managed to come out with second place at district and second place at regionals.

The men's team had a very prosperous year breaking a school record for compulsory exercises. The previous record was 168.00, but the men's team overcame this score early in their season with a score of 170.35.

State grew nearer as the hopes to be state champs lingered. The Trojan dreamed shattered however, as they came within five points of beating Bell. Members placing at the state meet were: Brad Rosse, fourth place in Floor Exercise; Kevin Stark, fifth place in Pommel Horse, Tim Singletary, third place in Pommel Horse; Stephen Dunn, fourth place on Parallel Bars; Stephen Lee, second place in Rings; and a fantastic accomplishment by a sophomore, Robert Short. He received the first place medal for vaulting, and was the 1980-81 Texas High School Vaulting Champion. The men's team finished the season taking a second place trophy home from the state meet.

In addition to these fine accomplishments at state, the men's team also came through with an All-American score for a second year. The All-American score must be an average based upon five meets, two of which must have five or more teams competing. The total must be a score of 140.00 or more. A few members of the team qualified, not only for the team score, but also as individuals. Qualifiers were as follows: Brad Rosse on Floor and Vault, Stephen Lee on Rings, Kenneth Cantrell on Floor, and Kelly Vickers and Robert Short on the Vault.

Underclassmen Eat Their Hearts Out

"Hi, welcome to McDonald's !" or "May I take your order?" These were phrases heard many times as the seniors enjoyed their privilege of being able to leave campus for lunch. The sophomores and juniors had to put up with eating in the cafeteria on campus.

For the past five years it has been a school policy that only seniors are allowed to leave campus to eat lunch. The senior privilege has created much controversy since the underclassmen were banned from leaving campus five years ago. The parents felt it was too dangerous to allow all students to leave because they felt there was a greater risk of their children having wrecks while they traveled back and forth to and from lunch. The only real problem with the senior privilege is that quite a few of the underclassmen try to take advantage of the privilege and sneak out a few years early.

The choices of food are numerous in Euless. Favorite places include: Wendy's, Taco Bell, Long John Silver's, McDonald's Whataburger, Taco Bueno, Sonic, Naples Pizza and many others. As a result of the high cost of eating out, many chose to go home for lunch. This cut down on the cost of school lunches plus it also allowed the students to relax before resuming studies again.

As the seniors enjoy their privilege of being able to go out to lunch, sophomores and juniors can only dream of being able to possess a senior pass some day in the future.

Community Growth Affects Trinity

The number of people residing in Texas has been constantly increasing. The Hurst-Euless-Bedford district is a community that has grown rapidly. There are many ways HEB has developed into a large and prosperous tri-city area.

Above: Skaggs Alpha Beta, one of the many new buildings located near Trinity, is seen from the balcony of Trinity's cafeteria. This view, like many others, is a view that students rarely take the time to enjoy.

The population increase is a factor that has proven that this area is a pleasant place to live.

Along with the increase in the population comes the building and developing of new homes, schools, office buildings, and stores of all kinds. These factors have caused what used to be known as the "country" to become a well-known and highly-developed community.

Residential areas have sprouted in numerous places. Countless numbers of people have moved to this district because of its location and its reputation. These people that moved here have made Trinity's enrollment enlarge each year. They have made it necessary to build more office buildings, grocery stores, and hardware stores. These stores, such as Skaggs Alpha Beta, Safeway, and Handy Dan, have been built near Trinity and have made a great impact on the school.

Top: National Mechanical Corporation prepares to build a new office building on a lot across the street from Trinity. Above: New stores, such as Handy Dan, exemplify the rapid growth throughout the community.

They have provided jobs for the students and have made life around Trinity more active. All of these factors have made Trinity realize the importance of their community growth.

Team Finishes Year In Texas Top Twenty

The 1980-81 THS Rodeo Team overcame the disadvantages of being a small team to become one of the top-ranked teams out of sixty-five schools involved in rodeo competition in the state of Top Left: Ricky Davis rides saddle brone. Texas. According to their sponsor, Mrs. Barbara Mullen, "Our club is small, but they do well, and we're really proud of them." Contrary to today's "Urban Cowboy" image, the members of the THS Rodeo Team prove that it takes more than a cowboy hat and boots to be a real cowboy or cowgirl.

school in the district hosts a rodeo in which entrance is available to all rival schools. Each school's rodeo is a threeday-event beginning Friday night with competitions on Saturday night and Sunday afternoon as well. Trinity held its annual rodeo over Easter weekend this past year. During their annual event, Trinity's Rodeo Sweetheart, Tammy Able, was presented, and all of the team members gave their best in the competitions with rival schools.

The team members this past year participated in activities other than just interscholastic competitions. Several members represented Trinity's Rodeo Team by braving the bitter cold to ride their horses in the annual Stock Show Parade which was held in January. The Team also went together as a group to Tulsa, Oklahoma to see the IRA Finals last year. Good times, along with hard work, made the 1980-81 Rodeo Team a success.

Dedicated Officers Spur Rodeo Success

The prime factor behind the success of the Rodeo Team was their dedicated slate of officers. The officers for the 1980-81 season were: Lynn Moore, President; Ricky Davis, Vice President; Tommy Top Left: Kenny McKern — bull riding. Top: The 1980-81 Rodeo Team officers. Gatlin, Sergeant at Arms; Doreen Zaremba, Secretary; and Tammy Able, Team Sweetheart. The Team held its meetings every two weeks on Thursday nights at the home of their sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. Mullen of Euless.

Being a member of the Rodeo Team involves much more than just attending meetings and paying dues. Long hours of practice and patience are required, and money plays a vital roll as well. For most of the events that Trinity competed in this past year, the standard entry fee was $12.50, with the only exception being team roping which was ten to twelve dollars more expensive. Since rodeo lasts the entire school year instead of just one short season, entry fees get very expensive. Most competitors agree, though, that when they receive a belt buckle or trophy, the time and money spent was well worth it.

Trinity was well represented by the guys in the bull riding, saddle, bronc, bare back, calf roping, and chute dogging events. The girls showed their skills in the areas of barrel racing, goat tying, and steer undecorating. The High School Rodeo Finals were held in June at Will Rogers Colliseum in Fort Worth where Trinity's top competitors went up against the best in the state of Texas. The dedication and hard work of each team member made the 1980-81 Rodeo Team a source of pride for Trinity High School.

Rock, Country Top Student Assemblies

Rock, country, take your pick. Trinity students not only get to pick one but they also had a chance to see both types of music played especially for them. A rock group composed of three Trinity students and one L.D. Bell student, played some fast moving rock-n-roll while Sammy Vaughan bought his band and played numerous country songs.

In late September the rock band "US" came and performed for Trinity students. The band consisted of Bill Porter, Robert Bost, and Chris Brooks, all from Trinity and one Bell student, Pat Murphy. They played songs by Styx, Led Zepplin, and Van Halen. Although not a generally-known group, US is considered one of the better rock bands to perform at Trinity.

At what seems to be an annual event, Sammy Vaughan and his band came and performed for the Trojan students. The concert took place during Homecoming in order to help raise Trinity's spirit even more. Sammy Vaughan played songs ranging from Ronnie Milsap to Larry Gatlin to the Copenhagen theme. As always, Sammy Vaughan's harp player, Luther, played a couple of solo songs which everyone enjoyed. As every year the assemblies proved to be successful for everyone.

These outstanding Trojans dedicated many long and hard hours toward a fantastic track team. The team was coached by Mr. Bill Nitcholas and Mr. Jim Wells. Mr. Wells led all field events and Mr. Nitcholas was in charge of the track and running events. The two coaches worked together as a great pair and aided in producing a terrific girls track team.

Holding school records for the year were Desty Hall, who placed second in the shot put at the district meet, and Christi West, who won first place in the high jump, also at the district meet.

night, you would think that would be enough! The counselors did not think so. They had a few extras planned for the campers that night. It was a relay buckbuck, building a pyramid with all of Trinity's campers and passing lifesavers in freezing weather down a line of nearly 30 people. You can bet the bunch slept well that night. The game room and outdoor swimming pool provided other places to spend any "free" moments.

After three full days of skiing and fun the tired campers packed up for the long ride home.

The ski trip was one of the many activities of Young Life. At the weekly meetings on Monday nights there was plenty of singing, laughing and skits. The Christian atmosphere provided a warmth and a sense of belonging which were all part of Young Life.

Trojan Trackers Get District Victory

At the sound of the gun, the Trinity Trojan track team was off to an excellent, record-setting year. The team members practiced long and hard in order to prepare for the meets against many of Trinity's rivals such as Lamar, Richland, LewTop Left: Tim Parks concentrates and plans his strategy for his next event. isville, Arlington and Sam Houston. In the Lamar relays Trinity came home with a 165-point victory. At the Richland Relays Trinity placed first with 160 points. At the Lewisville Relays Lorenzo Berrenguer set the new school record in the two-mile relay with a time of 10:01.07. At this relay Trinity, as a team, came home with another victory by scoring 155 points.

As the district meet approached, the Trojan track team was ready for success. The team won district with a total of 155 points. The Junior Varsity also placed first at the district meet with 169 points.

Trinity had quite a few people that got placed on the scoreboard for winning third place or better. Jimmy Mellado placed second in the long jump and high jump and first in the 110 meter and 300 meter hurdles. Joe Joyner placed second in the shotput and discus. Jeff Hileman placed first in the 3200 meter run and fourth in the 1600 meter run. Lorenzo Berenguer placed second in the 3200 meter run and second in the 1600 meter run.

Other star players this past year included: Steve Palmore, Nick Adams, Rod Parker, Steve Sims, Eric Woodard, John Williams, Brian Michelson and Steve Priddy. As far as team effort and effort made by each individual member, the track team closed the year with great success.

Trojan Track Team Strives For Success

Records are set every year, and this year was certainly no exception. Jimmy Mellado, known as the senior sensation, beat the seven-year record of six feet and seven inches in the high jump which was set by Pat Blanchard of South Grand Above Left: With a determined look on his face and in his mind, Rod Parker attempts to make his highest jump. Prairie in 1972. Mellado managed to conquer a jump of 6-8. Mellado also beat the previous state record for this year in the intermediate hurdles with a 37.33. The senior sensation is a five-event man, and that is only because one person can only enter five events. Other outstanding members of the team include weight man Joe Joyner, a rugged six feet and three inches and weighing 255 pounds, who threw the shotput 55 feet and 934 inches and the discus 162 feet. Nick Adams, 6-1 and weighing 200 pounds, lead the midcities in the discus with his 162 feet and 5 inch throw. Nick also placed third in the District competition this year.

This past year Trinity had four team members that qualified for the Regional meet, Jimmy Mellado, Joy Joyner, Jeff Hileman, and Lorenzo Berenguer. At this particular meet Trinity met its match. Mellado placed third in the intermediate hurdles and forth in the high jump. Joyner made the finals but didn't place. Coach Wright said, "Trinity had excellent qualifiers but, we just have a lot of tough competitors in our all-around area."

Trinity did excellent overall this year; it took team effort to make the stars, and the stars couldn't have done it without the team.

Number One Ratings Dominates THS Choirs

Leadership and fellowship were examples of the Choral Department at Trinity. Many talents were displayed by each student. These talents contributed to the real success of the choir.

To be in the choir, one had to be dedicated and hard working. Such requirements set Trinity's Choral Department apart from others.

The choirs were under the direction of Mrs. Cherie Townsend. She stressed the importance of leadership. To provide such a strong leadership was accomplished by the electing of section leaders and officers. The officers for A Cappella I were: Layne Golden, President; Tammy Skaggs, Vice President; Cheryl Blocker, Treasurer; Joy Hairr, Secretary; Delynn Gadberry, Librarian; Donna Burleson, Social Chairman; Rhonda Grubbs, Photographer.

The officers in A Cappella II were: Tracy Farney, President; Vicki Warren, Vice President; Melissa Cappello, Treasurer, Carole Garretson, Secretary; Len Hunt, Social Chairman; and Paul Vaught, Photographer. The Harmony officers were: Dan Hall, Student Manager; Lisa Scarlett, Librarian; and Lisa Donohoe, Secretary. The Girl's Choir officers were: Libby Hinkley, President; Renee Trimble, Vice President; Cynthia Alsobrook, Treasurer; Rhonda King, Secretary; and Charmy Parker; Librarian.

Though leadership was important, the fellowship among the students helped them. Everyone before a show or contest would gather to encourage and prayed for each other to perform well.

With the discipline stressed by Mrs. Townsend, the willingness of each student made the choir full of successful musicians.

Music Ecohes Through Choral Department

The power of Trinity Choral Department and creative genius was of such magnitude that they were bound for success. Yet, success was not easily conquered. It took long, tedious hours of studying and rehearsing their music. But, there were only a few requirements, dedication and hard work.

The choir activities this year included concerts in fall, at Christmas and during the spring. Yet, there were other events, too. These were considered individual competitions. They were: UIL, Solo and Ensemble, All-District, All-Region, All-Area, and All-State competitions held during the school year. These gave the student a chance to earn a letter jacket.

Top: Audrey Woodard concentrates on rehearsing. Top Right: The Girl's Choir practices forward perfection. Above: A Cappella I members rehearse for several hours before a performance.

And with this jacket the awards achieved by the student could be placed.

In the UIL competition, each choir participated. Yet, there was one contest that only one choir represented Trinity. This was the spring trip. The spring trip was to St. Louis, Missouri. A Cappella I enjoyed the five-day trip. They came home with the winning spirit of Trinity. A Cappella I received straight superior ratings of ones. Along with the rating of one, they received the Sweepstakes trophy.

A Cappella II and the Girl's Choir all performed exceptionally this year. They also participated in the UIL contest, again receiving excellent ratings.

Another choir full of dedicated singers was Harmony. They were a group of sixteen members, both female and male mixed. They were considered a pop ensemble group. The members sang and dance to provide excellent entertainment. Performing at community function was a big part. The music they sang conveyed a delicate and vibrant enthusiastic excitement.

The measures of the potential greatness in a choir student was their incessant inner-directed search for improvement. This search for improvement had a dramatic result. It brought out the determination, leadership, dedication, and hard work of a choir member. The greatness of the Choral Department was clearly discernible in the rehearsing and performance of the choir.

Baseball Attains Success

The Trinity baseball team began the season with an exciting defeat over Arlington Heights, 5 to 4. This game set the pace which the team hoped they could maintain throughout the season. The morale remained high as the Trojans won thirteen out of twenty-five games.

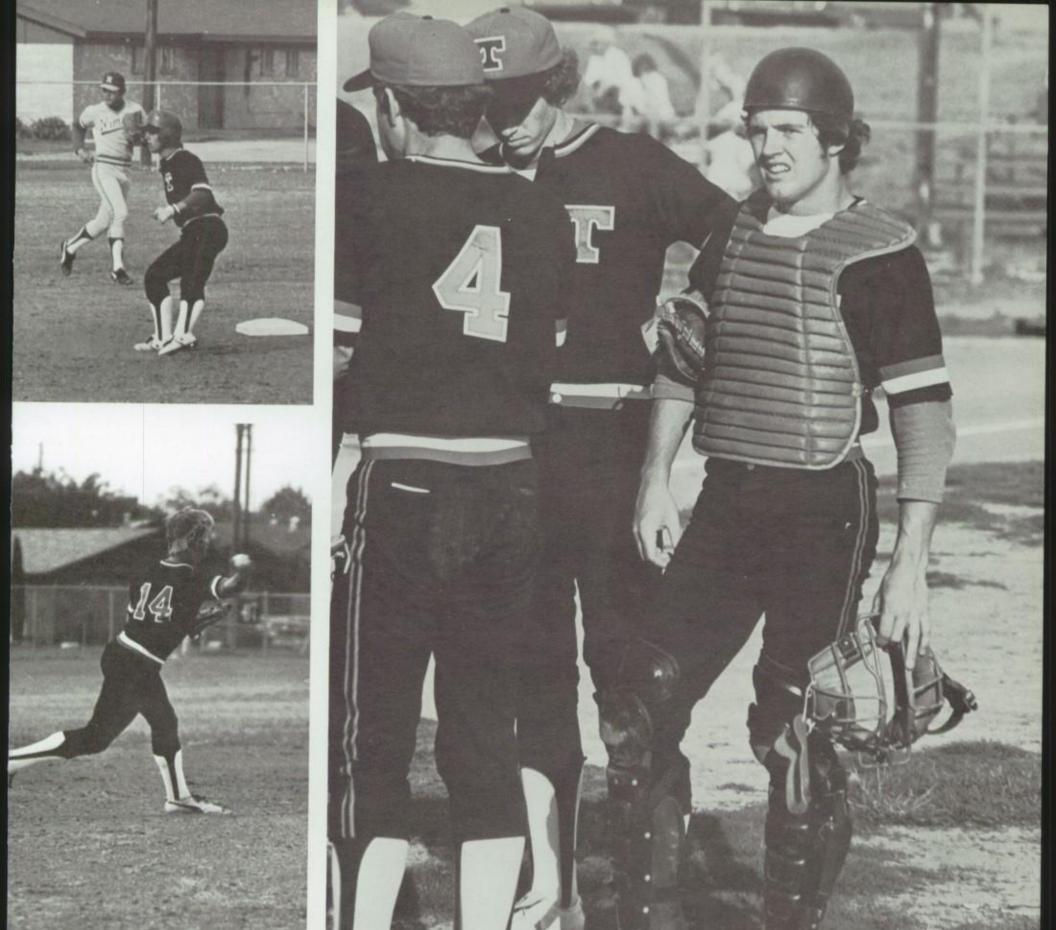

District games started with the Trojans beating the Grand Prairie Gophers 10 to 9. The pitchers aided the Trojans as Robby Hudson struck out twelve of the twenty-six people he faced at bat and Mike Serviente struck out ten of the twelve he pitched against. David Harrison's single also helped Trinity as he batted in Serviente in the top of the tenth to score the winning run.

It was impossible for the Trojans to remain spirited for long. Trinity was defeated by Richland, 3 to 11, and by Irving, 4 to 9. These losses were hard for Trinity to accept, but it forced them to work harder, and it built determination within the team.

Trinity's winning season was inconsistent as they won two games and then lost two. They had a close game against South

Grand Prairie, but managed to be on top as the scoreboard read 5 to 3. The game against Duncanville made them confident as they slaughtered the Panthers 10 to 4. Irving Nimitz seemed to know that the Trojans were looking good and felt that they needed to lose when they beat Trinity 14 to 6. The game against MacArthur was another heartbreaker as the Trojans lost 2 to 3.

The most exciting game of the season was the game against L.D. Bell. Being fired up and ready, the Trojans easily defeated Bell 14 to 3. In the first inning, Steve Priddy and Mike Serviente led the team as each hit a home run. Serviente hit another one in the second inning. This streak was continued as Matt Skinner and Brent Burris each hit one in the third inning. This game was perhaps the most important game of the season and the Trojans handled it beautifully.

Season Concludes With Satisfaction

After beating Bell, the Trojans felt they could do anything. Their winning streak continued as they upset Grand Prairie when they beat them 5 to 2. Irving was also surprised when Trinity defeated them 9 to 0. This was a beautiful game as the Trojans played great defense and had no errors. They also swung the bats well as the team batting average was .444.

Although Trinity was uneasy about playing Irving Nimitz again, they played as if they weren't. Each team played their hardest, but Trinity outdid them. When Hudson struck out Nimitz's best player it was evident that Nimitz was falling apart. Trinity's Matt Skinner was the hero as he hit a home run late in an extra inning. The team was ecstatic and their morale was high.

Their morale was crushed, however, when MacArthur beat them by one run once again.

Trinity won eight of the fourteen district games that they participated in. They scored a total of one hundred and thirty-two runs and allowed their opponents to score only one hundred and thirteen runs throughout the entire season. Trinity would have liked to have advanced farther, but fate didn't permit them to do so. They had an exciting season that each player would always remember.

Drama Department Reveals Their Talent

Trinity's Drama Club presented scenes from CYRANO De BERGERAC as their spring production. The play's setting occurred in 1640-1655 in France. club competed for district at South Grand Prairie High School against eight other high schools. They competed well and received the title of alternate.

Many characters participated in this drama. Chip Davis starred as Cyrano De Bergerac and Kenneth Cantrell played Medler, Monk, and Cadet. Comte De Guiche was played by Bob Hildreth. Pat Culbert was Vicomte De Valvert and

Cadet. The role of Le Bret was filled by Chris Yeats. Cheryl Blocker was Roxane and Donna Burleson played Her Duenna. Lance Boltz starred as Ragueneau. Kevin Kyrish participated as Carbon De Castel-Jaloux. Christian De Neuvillette was played by Tony Crow. Shirley Wetter took the role of Cadet and Lady. Sister Marthe, Cadet, and Lady were played by Lorrie McMahon. Katie Racz played Sister Claire and Orange Girl while Dori Swyhart played Mother Marguerite, Flower Girl, and Cadet. These students worked very hard and did an excellent job. They represented Trinity very well.

Off-Campus Events Come With Spring

With the tone of spring setting on Trinity's campus a phenominal epidemic has risen! Everyone on campus has experienced this disease; it's called "Spring Fever" . . . or to seniors, "Senioritis." Spring Fever usually hits about the beginning of March, but really gets into full swing by the middle of April. The symptoms of Spring Fever are as follows.

— Not being able to sit through English because you know you'd rather be at the lake!

— Excessive absences, from girls who say they are sick, but tend to return the following day with only a bad case of sunburn from lying out all day.

- Guys and girls at school with "very

the sun during lunch.

— Students also tend to get excessive tardy's during this time due to the lack of sleep. This makes them oversleep and then late for school.

- Constantly clean cars is another sign because the owners wash and wax them every weekend!

— The final symptom of Spring Fever is that there tends to be more "student celebrations" for various reasons when the weekend rolls around.

Spring Fever is a very contagious disease. After only a few innocent people catch it there is no use in trying to stop it . . . not even quarantine would help!

Trojans Continue District Dominance

were Darryl Henning, Jimmy Matuszewki, and Jay Rector.

Over the year the Trinity Golf Team competed in nine tournaments. Even though the golf team won only two out of the nine tournaments because of the size of Trinity's golf team, number wise. Coach Doyle Reynolds played different golfers all year. The main players were Jay Rector, Darryl Henning, Jimmy Matuszewki, Ronnie Nelson, and Lance

Wingfield. When district came around only five golfers from each school could compete and these five were the ones chosen to play.

District took place April 7 and 9 in Denton. Trinity competed against golfers from L.D. Bell, South Grand Prairie, and other schools in the 5A-9 district. But none proved to be a match against Trinity. Darryl Henning and Jimmy Matuszewki played one of their finest games all year and combined with other Trinity golfers to win by 36 strokes over second place Bell. With such an easy win in district, the golf team had high hopes for placing high in regionals at Denton.

'Inches' Prove Fatal To State Golf Hopes

Henning Takes 5th

Golf . . . a game of micro-inches? For Trinity golf Coach Doyle Reynolds it was because that's just how close the team came from winning a trip to state. After winning District, Trinity golfers, Darryl Henning, Jimmy Matuszewski, Ronnie Nelson, Jay Rector, and Lance Wingfield started to prepare for regionals, which were held April 30-May 1 at the North Texas University Golf Course in Denton. The year before Trinity's golf team placed second and therefore won a trip to the state finals. This year they hoped to do just as well or better. After a slow start on the first day at regionals, the Trojan golfers were third, but as always the Trojan fighting spirit prevailed and they came back to tie for second with Arlington Heights only to lose in "sudden death." With this loss they also lost their chance for a return trip to the state finals in Austin.

Even though the team didn't win the right to play in the state finals, Darryl Henning did with his individual score of 73-68-141. That proved enough to take individual medalist honors at regionals. The rest of Trinity's golf team did well with Jimmy Matuszewsk scoring a 149, Lance Wingfield with a 153, Ronnie Nelson finished with a 162, and Jay Rector scored a 165. Although Trinity's golf team didn't finish as strong as last year, they did win district and won individual recognition for Henning with his fifth-place finish in the state finals in Austin.

Mall Provides Chance To Rest And Relax

The students at Trinity High School did not spend all their time studying and attending classes. The lunch period and the six minutes between classes were spent relaxing and conversing with friends. The students found various ways Above Left: Patricia Helvey finds time to smile during her hectic schedule as a sophomore. Top: Julie Siratt, Valerie Townsend, Scott Moore, and Jana Sandlin enjoy each other's company on campus as well as off campus.

of relaxation including playing frisbee and sitting in the sun while talking to their friends.

Frisbee players could be found all over the THS campus at various times of the day. Students emerging from buildings would duck to avoid being hit by a plastic disc whirling at unknown speeds toward a distant person. The mall area was dotted with 2 or 3 people having a friendly game of catch while the lawn areas were filled with students who were divided into teams as they played a vicious game with rules similar to those of touch football. These invigorating games of frisbee were usually played during the lunch period when the students would have time to work up a good sweat.

The entire lunch period was not devoted to sweating through a game of frisbees, however. Many students could be found in the mall areas just relaxing with their friends. Groups of girls could be seen French-braiding each other's hair or just soaking up the sun amidst various conversations which contained juicy bits of gossip: "Did you hear about . . .?" or "Somebody told me that somebody else said . . ."

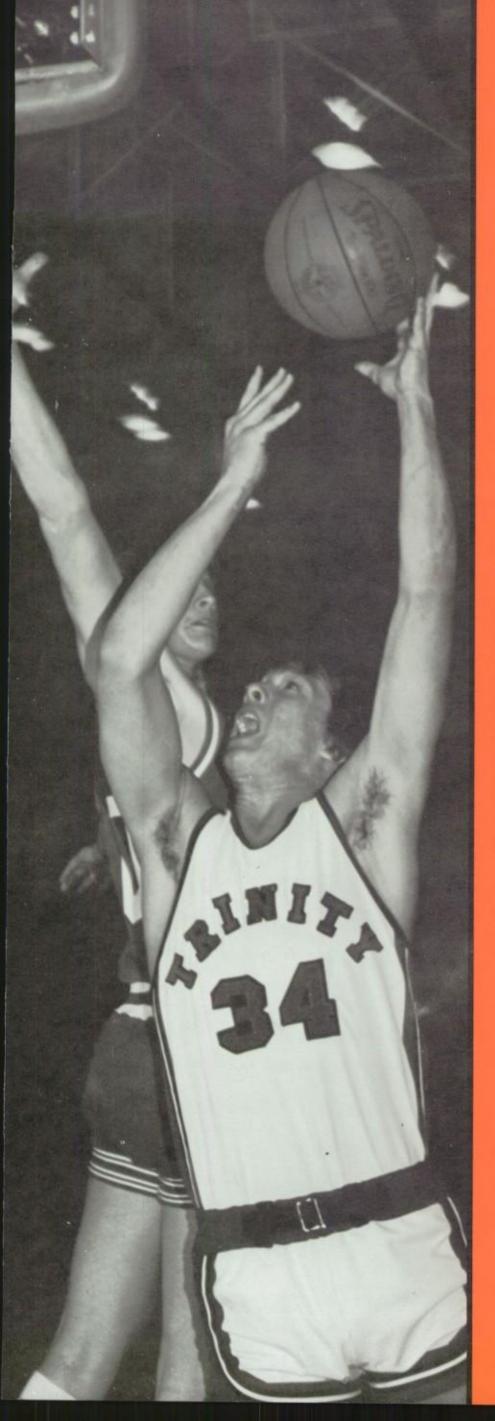

The six minutes between each class was generally spent conversing with friends in the locker banks and on the way to class. The locker banks were filled with hundreds of different conversations which were usually carried into the classroom and weren't silenced until the tardy bell pealed through the halls.

Rest and relaxation played an important role at Trinity. It allowed the students to have a few moments of free time before resuming their studies.

Faculty Gets

The substitution of the semester system for the trimester plan resulted in much controversy this year. A survey showed that the faculty's views were split. Extra-curricular activities such as band, choir, and athletics were hurt by the shorter periods. Choir director Cherrie Townsend expressed her concern about the need for more rehearsal time: "It has made it very difficult for us to achieve our goals." Coach John Reddell had to make adjustments concerning the athletic program, as the semester system has "seriously affected any sport that allows sophomores to participate with the varsity." On the other hand, the semester system has benefited the academic programs at Trinity. Jerry Norris, science teacher, felt he could "accomplish more this year than last year," because each course lasts the entire year.

"The semester system has seriously affected any sport

Although Trinity finally conformed to the semester system, it continued to be set apart from other schools in Texas. Together, the faculty and students either "make" or "break" a school. The stu-

"What I like most at Trinity are the faculty and the students." dent body and faculty definitely classified Trinity as a first-rate school. Principal B. J. Murray commented on the factor he felt most characterized Trinity: "There is a sense of caring that exists among the faculty members. They care for each other and their students."

Rick Park, a new band director this year, responded in much the same way when asked what he best liked about Trinity: "I think the students at Trinity are what I like best . . . I also enjoy the good relations between the teachers." History teacher Alyson Johnson disclosed her feelings when she said, "What I like most at Trinity are the students and faculty." Those two words. faculty and students, dominated the viewpoints of all faculty members questioned. Not many schools can boast about the character of its student body and the dedication and quality of its faculty. Trinity is, indeed, an exception.

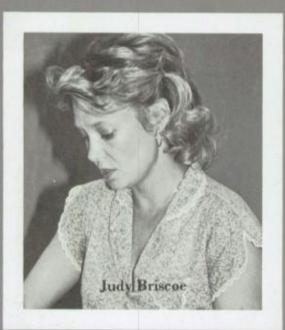

The campus and curriculum maintained the same level of class as the students and faculty. A college atmosphere prevailed throughout Trinity. The separate buildings and mall areas accentuated this environment. The discontinuated

To The Point

nected buildings, as on any college campus, did have their disadvantages, however. As one teacher observed, "When it's raining you always get wet." Aside from the opportunities provided by the campus itself, Trinity offers courses related to almost any area of interest. English teacher Diana Keown commented on what she felt made Trinity different: "The thing that sets Trinity apart is the varied curriculum and facilities available to students." The campus at Trinity abounds with opportunities for students and teachers alike.

To be a teacher at Trinity one must be strongly dedicated and readily willing to sacrifice time, effort and money. From many teachers' viewpoints teaching is not only a way of making a living, but is a significant part of their life. Teaching is more than a nine-to-five job, where, upon going home they can forget about school. English teacher Judy Briscoe emphasized this point: "... the concern I have for students, past and present, is certainly not limited to the classroom. They are a very big part of my life."

The motivation that keeps teachers going must be the self-satisfaction of becoming emotionally involved with students to the point of being an important, healthy influence in their lives. Keller Johnson, an English teacher of twenty-four years, summed up her feelings about teaching: "... teaching has given me an opportunity to meet, help, influence, mold, love, and respect twenty-four years of students - some of whom enriched my life even more than I did theirs. By constantly being with and working with young people, my greatest gains have been a heart that staved young, a mind that left me, a sense of humor that has carried me through many bad times, and a true interest in young people."

Workers That Are Worthy Of Report

Trinity's custodians and cafeteria staff took over the campus with a clean sweep. They should be given ninety-five percent of the credit for Trinity's high quality and beautiful campus.

Above Left: Ada Scott prepares a nutritional spaghetti lunch for the students in A and B lunches. Above: Lois Garrison is in charge of weighing the salads for the new salad bar which was placed in the school this year.

The custodians were in charge of the upkeep of all the rooms and the lawns over the entire campus. Except for the students, teachers and administrators, most people don't see the inside of Trinity. Those who don't attend Trinity judge the school on the outside appearance. The lawn and the numerous gardens were also a part of the custodians' daily routine.

To the students at Trinity, attending school is only a part-time job and only lasts for a few years. But to some people it is a lifetime job. John and Oma Fay Vaughn and A. K. and Ann Thorton, have been with Trinity High School since it opened in 1968.

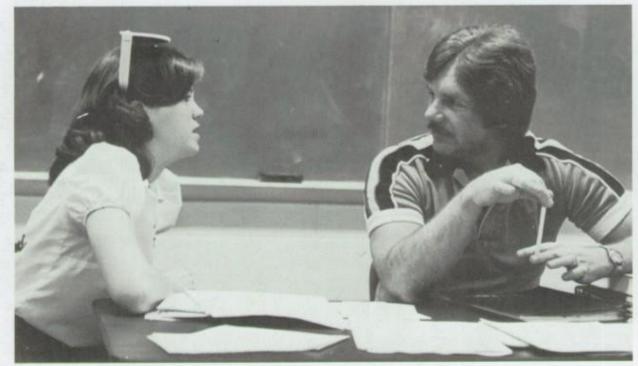

The Trinity High School cafeteria staff was one of the most important jobs on campus. If those ladies did not furnish the students with a good-tasting and nutritional lunch, then the students wouldn't be able to carry on their studies properly. The staff arrived at school bright and early every morning, Monday thru Friday, preparing breakfast, which they served promptly at eight o'clock. After breakfast they started fixing the lunches for noon.

The custodians and cafeteria staff played a vital role in giving the Trojans a reason to be proud of their beautiful campus.

Executives Perform Beneficial Tasks

A student's new beginning in high school depends on a certain group of his peers who are chosen for their ability to execute many tasks. This group is known as an executive council.

The Sophomore Executive Council is responsible for the success of the first year of a student's life in high school. The council was elected by the students of the sophomore class. The election was based on leadership ability, personality, scholarship, and optimism. Besides being new faculty members, Barbara Ratts, Diana Keown, and Alice Adams assumed the responsibility of being sponsors for the sophomore class. They thoroughly enjoyed working with the council and having the opportunity to become involved in campus life.

An executive council is required to provide fund-raising ideas for their class. Every spare moment the council had was spent organizing creative ideas which would benefit the sophomore class.

Mrs. Keown said, "Our main purpose is to organize class functions." The council kept busy with many projects to earn money for the sophomore class. These projects consisted of selling items such as M&M's, class T-shirts, and buttons.

The council also sponsored a Howdy Dance for freshmen and built the homecoming float.

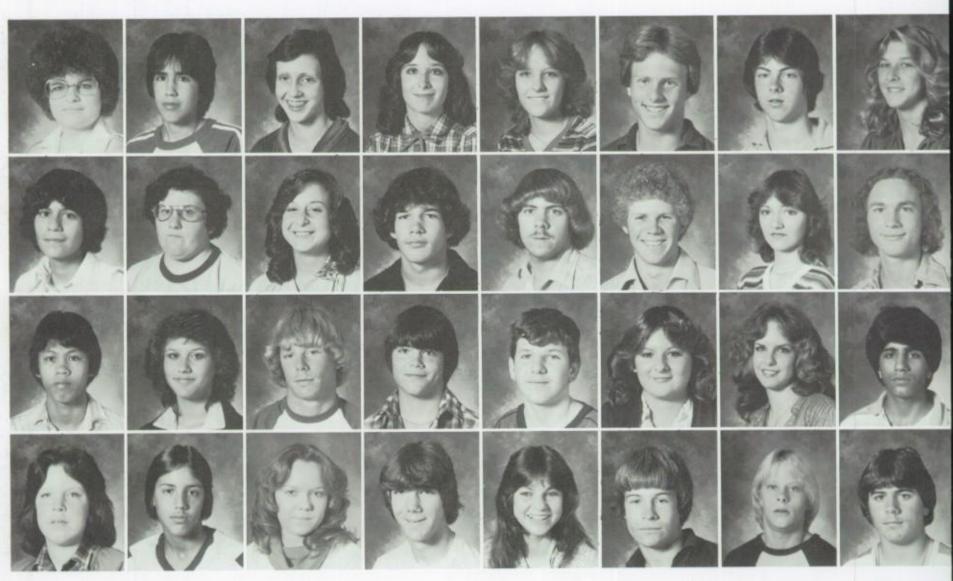

The money collected from these projects totaled approximately six hundred dollars. These funds were put toward the senior prom. Many of the students in the executive council hope to continue in future councils. The dedication of these students is apparent through the commendable deeds which they performed for their class.

Sophomores Explore Campus Environment

They made it! They were now among the elite. They've finally become sophomores. Being newcomers to the school, numerous things were waiting to be discovered. The freedom of campus life became a favorite among the students. Top: A studious group of Trojans take a break from the everyday class activities. Above: Saundra Mooney relaxes in the mall area and soaks up some rays during her lunch period. This was a very favorite pastime.

Some enjoyed the quiet life of studying in the library. Also, the mall area in front of the library was a great place for friendly gatherings.

Many advantages came along with being a sophomore and being new to the school. Drivers education was offered to those students old enough to take part. All of the different clubs and organizations were open to anyone interested in joining.

During football and basketball seasons, among the most spirited at the pep-rallies were the sophomores. They won the spirit stick and showed class participation during many games. Also, spirit was linked with spirit club, drill team, and cheerleader try-outs. For the boys, being in athletics and football played a large part in sophomore activities.

A new face and a new smile were always welcomed as new friends were made each day. Although the times were tough, the year was fantastic and filled with fun and pleasurable moments.

Sophs Find Trinity New And Exciting

Trinity's 1980-81 sophomores had more opportunities and advantages than ever before. Some groups offered sophomores a chance to join that never had before. For example, Trinity's twirlTop Left: Doug DeGuzman finds the language lab helpful. Top: Wendy Johnson discovers the "A" locker bank. ing line this past year had three sophomore members. This was the first year that sophomores had been permitted to try out for what was formerly a strictly junior/senior group.

Then there were the traditional sophomore clubs: JV football, JV basketball, and Spirit Club. Many members of the JV football and basketball teams received experience that gave them a better chance for making the varsity teams in their junior and senior years.

Members of the Spirit Club were able to try out for positions on the drill team and the cheerleading squad. For many members the hard work paid off, and they will represent Trinity as members of the Drill Team or cheerleading squad during the 1981-82 school year.

Sophomores also enjoyed their first year as members of the THS Young Life group. Monday night meetings were filled with skits, laughter, and just "good clean fun."

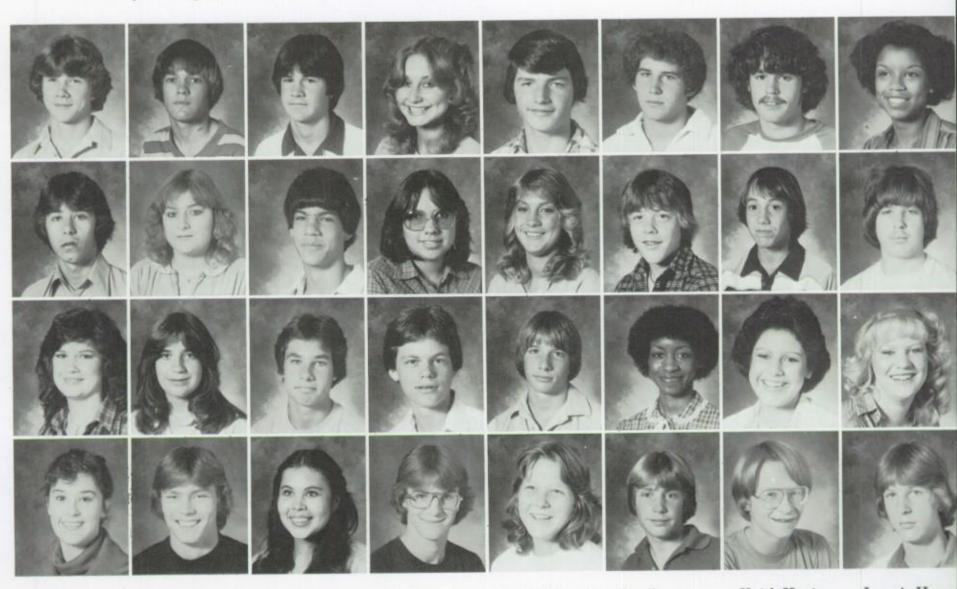

Another first for the sophomores was the educational opportunities at Trinity. Unlike their former junior high schools, Trinity offered them a wide variety of elective courses ranging from woodworking and stained glass to three different foreign languages. For many sophomores taking a foreign language, a trip to the language lab was a new experience. Sophomores received a warm welcome to Trinity this past year and found it to their liking.

Spirited Sophomores Parade Enthusiasm

"We've got spirit, yes we do," thundered 719 sophomore voices. The sophomores were perhaps the most spirited group of people on the Trinity campus. The members of this class became involved in many different organizations Top: Mike Douthit grapples with his opponent to prove that sophomores have spirit. and activities outside of their regular class schedule. Sophomores showed their spirit by wearing T-shirts with the class yell printed on them. They also attended dances sponsored by various organizations across campus. Many underclassmen were involved in the Student Council or in the Executive Council, while others participated in the athletic program or the fine arts program. Many of them spent their spare time helping with the construction of the homecoming float or inventing new methods to raise money for the financial benefit of their class.

Pep rallies provided another chance for sophomores to show their spirit. They participated in the victory yell and were able to obtain the spirit stick three times. The Spirit Club, which consisted mainly of sophomore girls, aided greatly in this task. The sophomores also voted on a class yell to carry them through their high school years. Following a quiet moment, the gym would ring with voices crying "We are great as you can see, Senior, Senior, 83!"

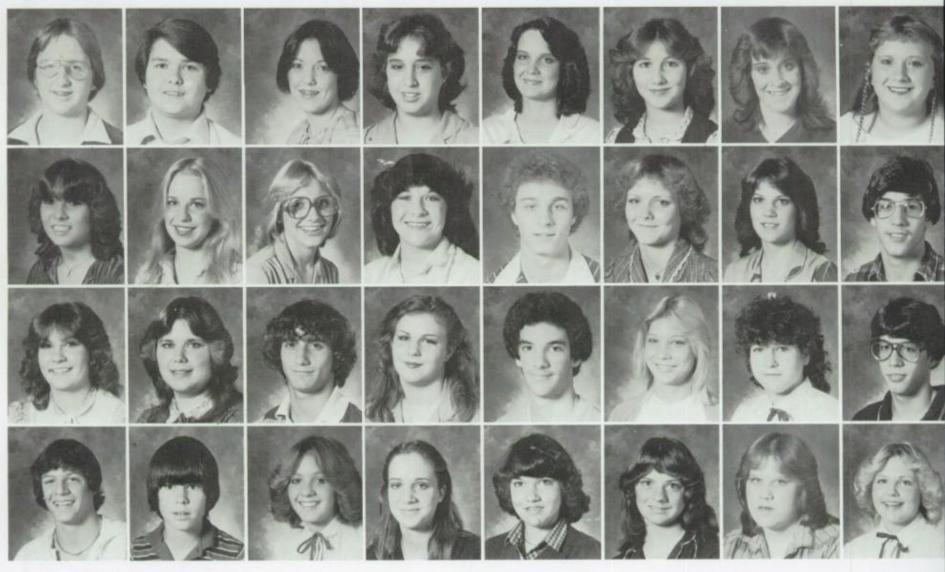

Apart from being active in organizations, sophomores showed their school spirit by respecting upperclassmen. They endured initiations in order to become accepted by the juniors and the seniors. This proved that the sophomores had enough pride and school spirit to become true Trinity Trojans.

Trinity Choirs Are Keeping in Tune

Although many think choir is only Do-Re-Me, it consists of much more than that. The Trinity Choral Department participated in many functions throughout the school year. Mrs. Townsend created a new choir this past year, Womens Select. Above: Junior Kevin Kyrish, a member of the Ensemble, Acapella I, and one of the many alldistrict choir members expresses his beautiful talent as he dazzles the Trinity High School audience at one of their numerous assemblies.

She called the new choir "small, but great." All choirs are totally different, and they do not intermingle with one another.

The Choral Department competes in the University Interscholastic League every year. Soloists perform along with the Ensemble for top ratings. This year Acapella I traveled to Six Flags Over Mid America in St. Louis to compete in contests at which they were very successful.

Mrs. Townsend conducts four choirs. Acapella I is made up of second and third-year members of choir, those who have been active in choir in years past. Acapella II consists of first-year members, and students that have not been previously acquainted with choir. The Girls Choir, mostly juniors, is Trinity's newest choir. Finally the Ensemble, chosen from the preceeding choirs, performs at civic organizations, nursing homes, and banquets. All of the choirs, as said by Mrs. Townsend, are "continually progressing in choreography and perfected precision." "More of my students seem to be more interested in music as a career, and constantly striving for scholarships."

As the year's end grew near the extraordinary members auditioned for district. Those talented ones that advanced looked forward to region, area, and finally state. Trinity was proud to have two all-state qualifiers, Donna Burleson and Brooks Monk. The home of many fine singers rests on our campus.

This is shown greatly in all of their talent.

Adding Some Music

Echoing from the parking lot, music could be heard each morning and afternoon. The volume turned up and windows rolled down created a stereo effect within the school grounds.

Songs which played on these car radios often reflected the feelings of the time. In this way, music provided Trinity students with many memories. A song which received a lot of air time became an association with ideas, dreams, and events of the school year.

expressed the desire for this basic type of Rock 'N' Roll.

Despite opinions like these, a "new wave" of Rock 'N' Roll is up and coming. This type of music sometimes chooses to contrast the old time rockers and is beginning to receive a larger and larger following among students.

Many students, like sophomore Scott Moore, predict that this "new wave" will become larger still. Although this prediction may be true, it is absolutely clear among students still rocking hard, that Rock 'N' Roll will never die.

Other types of music popular among Trinity students included adult contemporary music or mellow Rock. Sophomore Julie Thompson voiced her pleasure to be "soft and mellow music."

"I Like To Rock"

Although all students enjoy music, each has their own personal taste and style. Sophomore Scott Moore emphasized his interest in Rock 'N' Roll. He listened to bands like April Wine, AC/DC, Van Halen, and Boston. One of Scott's favorite songs, "I Like To Rock," truly expressed his brand of music. Scott seemed to favor heavy metal Rock combined with recording and production perfection. Many dedicated rockers also Julie's radio, often tuned to stations such as KVIL and KMGC, played such songs as All Out Of Love, I Made It Through The Rain, and Love On The Rocks.

Many students, like Julie, mentioned artists such as Barry Manilow, Air Supply, Olivia Newton-John, and Neil Diamond as a few they listened to and enjoyed. Overall, this type of easy listening music had a slower pace and focused on the thought or love of a person, moment, or feeling. Often these songs touched a certain feeling in every listener that will last with them a long time.

Closely related to a combination of Rock 'N' Roll and adult contemporary music is that of disco. A handful of Trinity students voiced their opinion in favor of this dancing music. The overall emphasis was that disco was slowly fading away. Many students said that the disco music of the late seventies was not dead, but instead changed into a new style of music to dance to.

One of the most popular kinds of music found on the Trinity campus was that of country. Many students, like sophomore Susan Massey, kept with the western tradition and enjoyed artists such as Kenny Rogers, Larry Gatlin, Barbara Mandrell, and Ronnie Milsap. Songs like Lady, Trying To Love Two Women, and Take Me To Your Lovin' Place often could be heard from a passing pickup truck in the school parking ing to county music.

Whatever personal preference mentioned, each student expressed their interest in music. They were proud of their music and emphasized this through the wearing of concert shirts and window lot.

With the release of the movie and soundtrack from "The Urban Cowboy," the popularity of country music gradually increased. The cause of such a growth was largely due to the fact that movies, TV shows, and songs became known to a wider range of individuals. Around campus, many students, not necessarily considered cowboys, could be found listen-

Sophomores Strive For Achievement

Attending a new school and meeting new friends . . . Could you ask for anything more? During their first few days at Trinity a new crop of sophomores accomplished things like learning their way around the campus, which was no easy task. They also had to decide the clubs, organizations, and activities in Top Left: Lisa Good and Paul Waschka. Top Right: Christie McBrayer and Holly Brooks show the friendship they found at Trinity. Above: Belinda Snell and Teri Borg, were two lucky sophomores chosen for the homecoming court.

which they wanted to become involved. The most important achievement of sophomores occurred during the first few weeks of school, when they met all of the new friends they would keep in the years to come.

Being a sophomore was not easy. They had to take Driver's Education, a semester of practicing, reviewing, testing, and driving on the same course. All of this practicing added up to one of the sophomores' most important achievements, attaining their driver's licenses.

This past year's class of sophomores was an extraordinarily spirited one. The loud bunch managed to win the spirit stick from their upperclassmen at a number of the year's pep rallies.

Many sophomore girls meet a big challenge around the middle of the year. They practiced hour after hour for those few precious minutes in front of the judges. Of course they were trying out for drill team. Most girls considered this a very important achievement. It was a main course of their school year.

The sophomore guys on the other hand, had varsity sports to work for. They worked out for a full year in junior varsity preparing for the tough season ahead. There was much stiffer competition as they worked toward the varsity teams. This was a big achievement for the guys considering they would be working for a letter.

All of these achievements and accomplishments occurred this past year as they do every year to the new sophomores of Trinity High.

The unity and spirit of Trinity were developed in many and individualism. There was also a variety of people and activities in which one could easily fit into the "swing" of Trinity.

The year 1980-81 has been memorable for the Juniors in many ways. The Senior rings, the Junior theme, the many different activities and much more have all contributed to the completion of the 1981 year for the Juniors.

Now the time has come to look forward to the long awaited senior year of 1982. Yes, it is true, the year has come fast, and before one knows it, it will have slipped away with only the memories of a great year. So beware, for we are Trojans, proud and true, Senior, Senior '82.'

Proud Juniors Flaunt Their Yearly Spirit

The junior year is filled with spirit and good times. These good times come with the pride and spirit of being a student at Trinity. Pride comes from being a part of one of the best schools in Texas, the beautiful campus, the outstanding faculty, and the opportunities THS provides. The spirit comes from within a person.

But this spirit is not especially directed toward sports only. School spirit may be shown in several different ways. Wearing the class T-shirt, attending executive council meetings, or selling bunnies to raise money can show school spirit.

Also school spirit can be shown in a person's personal satisfaction in an organization. Students enjoy what they are doing and practice for any kind of competition coming up. They do this for their enjoyment, recognition, and the school's recognition. Being a part of the Trinity Band demonstrates school spirit. The Trinity Troyanns show spirit not only at pep rallies and halftime shows, but also at State wide competition.

Many juniors worked at Six Flags during the weekend, not for themselves, but for the junior class. The money they would receive went in the savings for their senior prom. Working in the hot sun for several hours without getting the money for themselves shows a tremendous amount of school spirit. But the money is actually for themselves. It is put in the savings along with candy and bunny sales to pay for their senior prom.

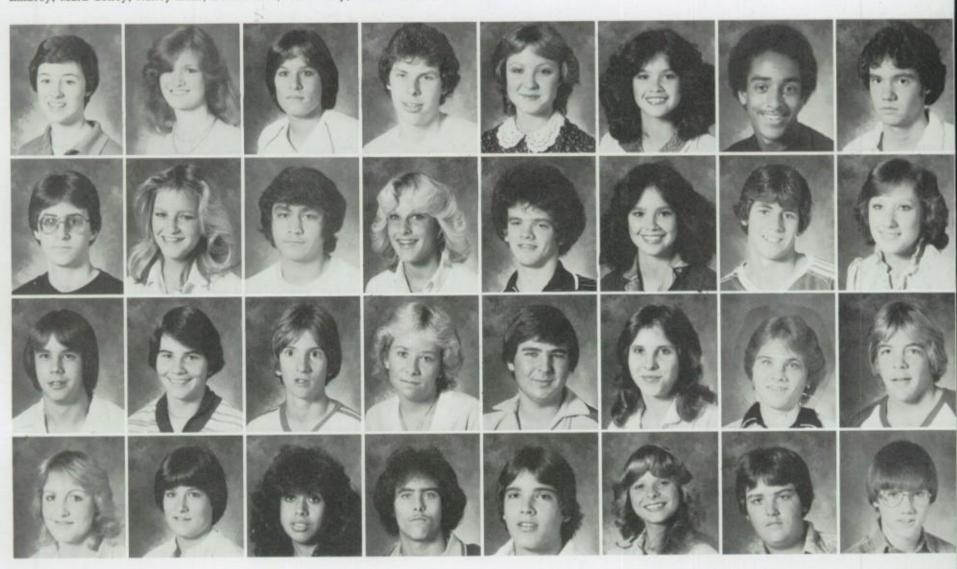

The pride and spirit of the juniors, as well as sophomores and seniors, has clearly been demonstrated in other manners besides sports all year.

Juniors Get Down

about getting a date; "... I stay at home and sob over not having a date," but "... I talk on the phone for hours."

Although, some juniors may have been very productive or talkative for a Friday, others seek enjoyment in the quiet and delicate life. Jerry Scott stated that he enjoyed going out to a nice quiet "dinner for two." But he also emphasized that "... sometimes I enjoy a wild time out raising hell with the gang."

"I get into working on my race car sometimes."

The "... raising hell" sometimes considered wrapping someone's house or decorating cars or just being "crazy." This may not be looked upon as the quiet life, but the fast and crazy times.

Another activity was very similar to ning of the weekend. Each person prefers to do something different and exciting. Some students enjoy going to the movies, parties, or the lake.

One such junior, Donnie Green expressed his Friday-night activities. "I get in to working on my race car sometimes or going out on the town." Donnie Green spends several hours working on his race car for perfection. So, the greased on sweat does not stop one to be determined to turn out a great piece of machinery, even on a Friday Night.

While Donnie Green searched for enjoyment in being very productive, Lori Williams, a junior, was concerned more

On Friday Night

Though being together was great, going with the gang was important also. Sometimes a group of guys or girls would get together and go "goof around." One familiar hangout was Northeast Mall. There were places for shopping, eating, and pinball places. "Wasting my quarters for the pinball machines" was a favorite activity by Mark Long. After the tiring game of thumb action on the "old" pinball machine, one could not pass by Pietro's pizza. Mike McElveen along with oth-

Henson stated that she "... loves to watch all the jocks and to party hearty!"

The parties were a big part of Friday night. With the use of someone's house,

Earlier in the year was football season. The games were every Friday night for several months. Everyone gathered to cheer on the Trojan team. Yet, there were other sports that took place on Friday. After the game friends got together to party down. One junior, Shannon friends gathered to dance, eat, and chat through the evening.

But some students were the athletic type on Friday. "An occasional raquet-ball game," was enjoyed by T. J. Irwin. Along with raquetball, there were other sports such as, bowling, Putt-putt, or to pick up the pace there were go-carts. Exhausting, yet, tremendous fun.

No matter what activity was enjoyed by the juniors and the rest of Trinity's students, Friday provided a break from the school week, and a chance to hang loose.

the "crazy" times. This was "cruising" expressed by Tracy Sharp. Cruising consisted of a four-wheeled vehicle, a group of friends, and a strip to cruise down. The strip usually started on Pipeline Road and went through the Bellaire Shopping Center. Students and friends would sometimes stop at a local hangout and discuss the latest happenings. You could hear the radios cranked with the latest hits and the people talking through the streets.

Yet, while others enjoyed cruising, some found good times being together as two. This was formerly known as dating — a boy and a girl going out for the evening. Mark Long and Alicia Dickinson were one of several junior pairs who enjoyed going out. "We go to the movies usually," said Alicia, and "after, we go to eat."

Spring Fever Brings Widespread Epidemic

"Spring has Sprung." And the juniors of Trinity knew all about the symptoms of "Spring Fever." The weather played its part when the sun popped out and the birds began to chirp and nature set the mood. Everyone was ready for sun, sea, and no more homework.

Abiding by school policy on dress code was often difficult for numerous Trojans. No bare shoulders were allowed. Tank tops, tube tops, and sun dresses were among the favorites discriminated against.

Numerous students brought homework and lunches to the mall area and enjoyed the season during their lunch period.

Above: Junior Albert Rossi looks as if he hasn't a care in the world. He sets his own mood of spring time delight and the carefree fantasy of summer. The shades depict an unknown personality brought out in many students this time of year.

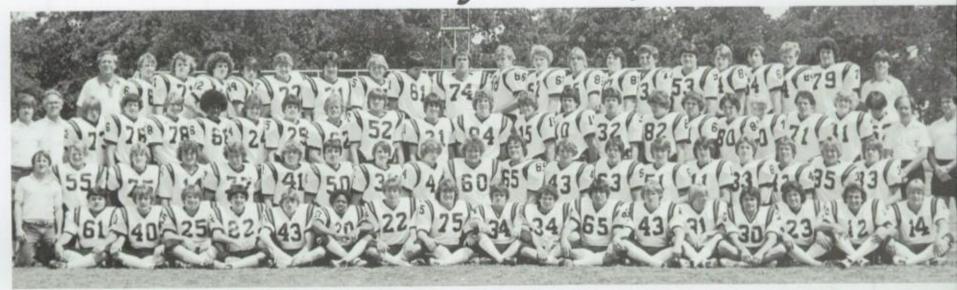

Frisbee playing was also a well-thought-of spring pastime. While campus life kept busy, many students visited the sun deck located near the pool area.

After school pastimes often included a fun trip to the nearest lake or a pool party at the neighbors' house. Everything from braided hair to bare feet could be seen heading for the sun. As soon as Final Exams were over, the campus was empty and a big summer was ahead for the students of Trinity.

Although the rules were strict, everyone managed to enjoy the weather and atmosphere of the Trojan campus and let the well-known "Spring Fever" take over.

ecutive Council must not be forgotten. They were the group that helped the class stay together as a whole.

The major purpose of the council was to raise enough money for the class prom, graduation expenses, and the senior gift presented to the school every year by each graduating class. The Executive Council consisted of those seniors who were willing to work for the whole class and make the prom, graduation and the whole year, in general, the best Trinity had ever had.

Some of the major money-makers that the council encountered this year were: Texas Stadium, school dances, and the carnation sale. The project that saved the council was "Operation Texas Stadium." It consisted of many long hours of sweating and also freezing to death as the council walked up and down the stands at Texas Stadium hollering "Coke, ice cold Coke and Dr. Pepper" or "I scream, you scream would someone please scream for ice cream." For each of the seventeen games, Senior Executive Council made about two hundred dollars.

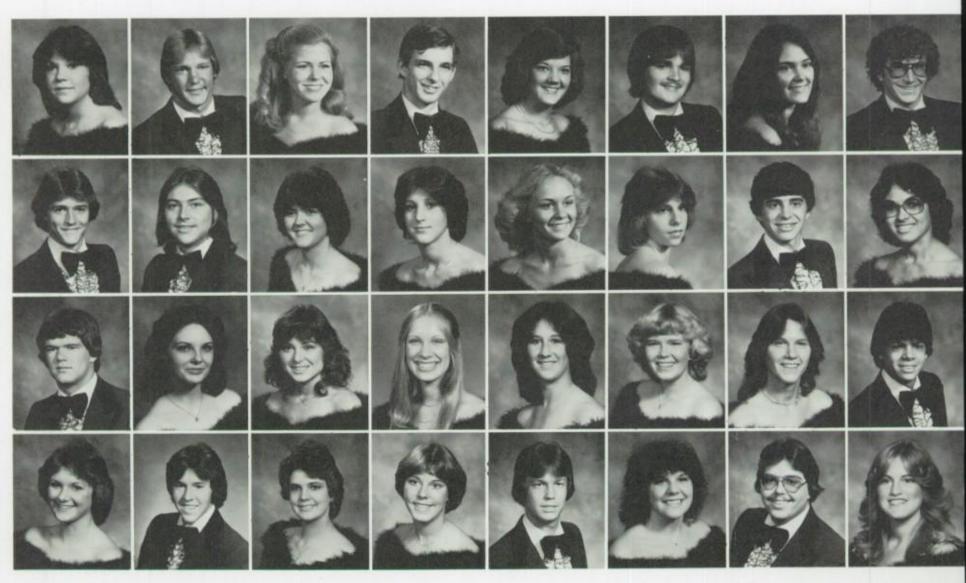

If the members of the Senior Executive Council were to be summed up into one phrase they would be known as "the leaders of tomorrow."

Trades, Radio and TV, and Auto Paint and Body also worked with customers. Each year representatives from the Career Center participated in contests, and each year they brought home trophies and ribbons. This could be considered a credit to the instructors who worked with the students as well as to the students themselves. The Career Center gave Trinity students a chance to become familiar with several areas of work. This helped them to decide if a particular occupation was suited for them. The HEB Career Center focused on preparing for the futures of its students by acquainting them with occupations of their interest.

Seniors Show That They're Number One

Striving to be number one is an important quality within all Trinity students. It comes from being in high school. It comes from being a Trojan. Most of all, it comes from being a senior. Top Left: Laura Gricius keeps tradition of signaling number one during the Alma Mater. Top Right: At football games, students give support in many ways. Senior Stephen Padgett, George Bellas, and Kevin Joliet display spirit.

From the time you enter school, everyone has the natural feeling to show that they are number one. This feeling occurs during pep rallies, football games, basketball games, and other activities.

Even if no one admits it, every sophomore and junior waits for the day when, as seniors, they can really express to everyone that they are number one.

Opposite Bottom: In the crowded senior section during a pep rally, spirited seniors make it known to everyone that they are number one. Above: Trojan mascot Teri Kuhn helps lead in cheers at a football pep rally.

The feeling of being a senior is a very special one. It comes only after many long years of anxiously waiting for that September day in which you officially began your last year in high school. When that year finally comes though, it seems to slip away so very fast. After waiting so long for your senior year, when it finally arrives, it is over before you know it.

Even though twelfth grade is very enjoyable, it can also be sentimental and sad. On graduation day, every senior knows that they must leave something behind and that their last year in high school is just a memory.

This is the reason why seniors take pride in everything they do. It is known that they have something going for them, just in the fact that they are seniors. The word "senior" can become a good one word excuse for almost anything done in that final year of high school.

Spirit is very important to a Trojan senior. For in that final year, Trinity means more than ever before. Seniors know that they are the foundation of the school. Almost everything leads up to their graduation day in May. They must provide pride and spirit to carry on the tradition of being number one to sophomores and juniors for years to come.

Before those years arrive, seniors can take the time to show their own pride and spirit. They have achieved a year in which they can honestly show that they are number one.

Academics Are More Than Just Basics

"Extras" Add Depth

School could have been a real bore if science, math, or English were not a student's "cup of tea." Trinity strove to provide more than just the basics. With a curriculum including a wide variety of electives, a student could be very selective. Learning was enhanced with these "extras."

The student with creative inclinations had many possible courses of study to follow. The large number of art classes in the Fine Arts Department offered a good starting place for many. Theatre Arts provided another dimension for creativity. For the more technical creator, drafting was an option. Photography enabled students to express creativity in yet another way.

For the student with the home in mind, a range of classes suited his needs. Classes instructing the "how-to's" of sewing and cooking were popular. Insights to family living and the development of the child were explored in classes pertaining to these areas. A Single Survival course summarized the necessities of making it on one's own.

Even the basics were spiced up. Psychology helped many students better understand their behavior and provided new awarenesses. Positive attitudes were built and encouraged in "I Can" classes. Foreign Languages stretched a student's environment. Even math was made interesting and more enjoyable with the computer program.

Business trades were taught in classes like typing, shorthand, record keeping, and office machines. Actual business experience could gain credit through one of the vocational programs. Indeed, Trinity had something to offer every kind of student.

Seniors Voice Opinions

From western to preppy, boots to braids, fashion fourished on the THS campus. A number of "Urban Trojans" flaunted western shirts, belts, and cowboy boots. It was not uncommon to see girls wearing their cowboy boots with skirts and dresses as well as jeans and western shirts. The newest western accessory for the guys was the feather hatband. A wide variety of colored feathers ranging from peacock to bob-white were prevalent. Boots were popular in exotic skins from bull hide to elephant, including the traditional leather. According to senior Bill Porter, "Everyone followed in the footsteps of the 'Urban Cowboy' whether they liked it or not." But senior

Kenny McKern said that "the 'Urban Cowboy' look was out of style,"

A far cry from the western styles was the "preppy" look that came about last fall. Both guys and girls wore oxford shirts and loafers to complete the "preppy" look. The girls brought back styles from the past by wearing bobby socks and loafers with full pleated skirts. The guys took on a more tailored look with the "Izod" shirt and loafers. By the spring of the year, the alligator was up against competition from the fox, the armadillo, the tiger (or campus shirt), and the polo shirt. Although there are many competitors, the alligator remained ever popular at Trinity. Senior Vicki Bateman said that she "still preferred her yellow "Izod" shirt over the fox.

As the collars went higher, the shoes went lower in women's fashions. A majority of women closeted their spike heels and opted for lower shoes. The bow tie also became an important accessory with which to accent a neckline.

A new trend is hairstyling was also a fashionable fad. Every girl whose hair was long enough (and even if it wasn't) found some way to braid it. For many girls French braiding provided an alternative to rollers and curling irons and still enabled them to look nice. Julie

"... Everyone became an 'Urban Trojan'..."

Hingst said that "French braiding my hair enables me to be cool and comfortable and look nice at the same time."

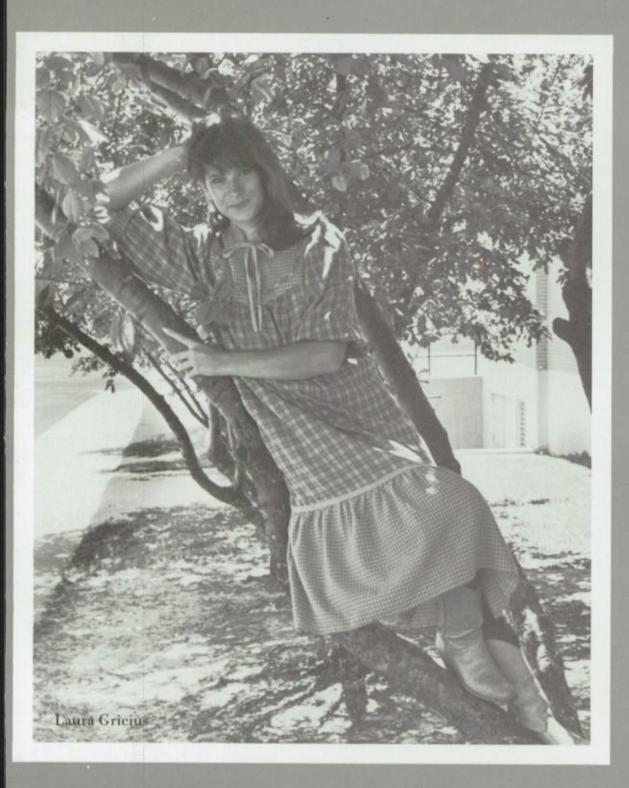

In spring fashions for girls, the dress made a major comeback. The t-shirt dress was a cool alternative to pants on a hot day. Although school dress codes prohibited sundresses and tube tops, many compromised by using a light jacket or blouse as a cover-up for bare shoulders. Senior Debra Morrison said that she "preferred to wear a dress on a warm day because it was a lot cooler than jeans."

In guy's spring fashions, jeans, t-shirts, and thongs were the common attire. Overalls were also seen more frequently than before.

The color scheme for spring and summer fashions ranged from the palest shades of lavender, pink, and blue to the brightest brights of red, blue, and yellow. White was also a popular color for "showing off" a newly acquired tan. During lunch on sunny days it was quite natural to find the mall areas lined with "sunworshippers" working on their tans.

On The Year's Fashions

"... Dresses are cooler than jeans..."

Possibly the most fashion-oriented event of the year was the Senior Prom. There was a variety of styles among couples. One of the newest trends in girl's formals this year was the hoop skirt. The "Southern Belle" look was rampant, and many guys sported tails, a top hat, and a cane. On the other hand, a regular tux-edo was also fashionable in a variety of colors. Whether the style was "southern belle" or "sophisticatedly slinky," Trinity's senior girls turned out looking lovely, and the senior guys looked debonairily handsome. Another fashion trend seen prom night was the limousine. Although it was not worn, it was an accessory that was a real attention-getter. Nevertheless, not many could afford limousine service without exhausting their life savings and then some.

During the school year many fads were started. One of the fads that started during the spring of the year was that of "Lee" jeans. Both guys and girls went out and bought a pair to support the style. There were also a number of rock concerts this past year. You could count on seeing t-shirts advertising the concert as soon as everyone was back at school.

Some of the more popular shirts were Styx, REO Speedwagon, AC/DC, Van Halen, and Rush.

Jewelry was also worn more than usual. Gold charms and neck chains were the most commonly seen. Senior guys started a new fad in shoes by wearing a new type of thongs called "Tiddies." The guys also made their grand entrance to the prom wearing tennis shoes with their tuxedoes. Guys also brought a little bit of California to Texas when they began to wear California's "Op" line of clothing. Even though the "Op" line of clothing has been around in California for years, it has just now become popular in Texas, and Trinity quickly picked up the style.

Trinity's exceptional facilities provided the place for many student activities to occur throughout the year. The football field, the track, the gym, the soccer field, the baseball field, the pool, and the tennis courts were some of the sites that allowed the Trojan athletes to compete against each other. These fine conveniences were greatly appreciated by the students.

Trojans also recognized the advanced utilities within the classrooms. Surroundings such as the science laboratories, the kitchen facilities located in the Homemaking Department, and the listening labs in the English and Foreign Language Department made learning an exciting adventure.

The open area between the Academic building and the Science building, more commonly known as the mall area, was a very popular place. Students gathered and associated with their friends within the mall. It served as another locality to consume their lunches and allowed them a place to relax from the ordinary classroom surroundings.

Évents throughout the year such as Homecoming, football games, Valentine's Day, and Christmas activities enabled most of the seniors to remember special times at Trinity. Other moments often reminisced were those when the senior class worked at Texas Stadium and sold various items to raise enough money for their prom. The prom was perhaps the most memorable night of their lives, along with graduation. These two happenings were what every senior had dreamed about and eagerly awaited.

Seniors allowed the friendships and adventures that occurred at Trinity to be embedded in their minds. These acquaintances and experiences made a great impact on their personalities. They matured both as a student and a person, and they realized the importance of their friendships. Their metomorphosis prepared them to end their life at Trinity and begin a new one elsewhere.

Years Of Hard Work Rightfully Honored

Each year at Trinity High School two very special awards are bestowed upon a teacher and a student. For a teacher the ultimate honor is to be voted "Teacher of the Year" by fellow faculty members. possible, one of which is the DAR award which is presented to a senior girl each year.

This past year Mr. Tom Neugent was voted "Teacher of the Year" by the faculty and administration of Trinity High School. Mr. Neugent has been the Band Director at Trinity for the past nine years. Under his direction, the THS Band has won many awards and honors. In fact, it has almost become a tradition for the band to win sweepstakes at contests every year. Mr. Neugent finds it gratifying to see kids achieving their goals. His twenty-one years of experience in teaching band have earned him the respect of his students as well as his co-workers.

Senior Lori Loerwald was the honored recipient of the DAR award for the 1980-81 school year. Lori's outstanding scholastic and leadership abilities prompted the members of the local DAR chapter to present its annual award to her. In Lori's three years at Trinity she has proven her leadership ability by successfully holding many offices. Her activities included three years on the Triune yearbook staff, including serving as Editor her senior year. Lori was active in student council all three years, serving as secretary her junior year and president her senior year. As a result of her achievements, Lori was also selected as Miss THS for the 1980-81 school year. Lori's dedication and hard work has earned her the respect of the school and the community.

Sharon Clark, Trinity High School's Salutatorian, was also very active around THS. Sharon was involved in band which took up most of her time. She was head drum major, was active in Youth Orchestra of Greater Fort Worth and was the president of National Honor Society.

Sharon has had many scholarship offers — The Texas A&M Presidential Scholarship, the TCU Academic Scholarship and the UD Texas Scholarship which has offered to pay full tuition. She plans to attend U.D. and major in liberal arts.

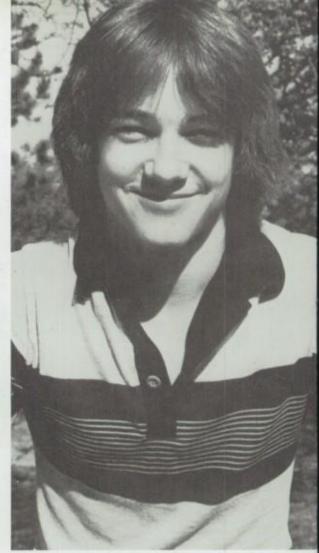

When Sharon was asked how Trinity has helped her, she replied, "Trinity has given me a solid academic foundation and an increased appetite for learning. I've always had good teachers who challenged me to do my very best."

Chemistry: "By Steve Coxsey's participation in class, he encourages peer involvement. He enjoys the challenge of Chemistry and is a very hard worker with a fine analytical mind."

Radio and T.V.: "Danny Alejandro is always interested in learning more about this subject. His readiness and capability has insured a pleasant classroom atmosphere."

Baseball: "Robby Hudson takes on a personal challenge to do as well as possible. His leadership and enthusiasm have improved the already credible baseball team at Trinity."

Overseas: A Trip To Remember

Germany and Austria . . . what a fun vacation! Fun it was as the travel studies 22-member group set out on their long ten-hour journey to Frankfort, Germany for their spring vacation. Upon landing, Trinity's group, along with a group from Mesquite, loaded onto a bus that was headed for the Rhine River where they took a two-hour cruise and viewed many beautiful sights.

The morning came quickly as the eager sightseers started their day by visiting the huge Castle Heidelburg containing the largest wine vat in the world.

Following the castle came the University and the town square. After lunch the group continued their drive to Munich. Astonished by the narrow streets, everyone feared an auto accident would occur, but luckily it turned out to be a safe five-hour trip.

The first day in Munich started with a tour of the Nymphenberg Palace, the Glockenspiel, and the Olympic Village. After a busy morning, the travelers had some free time to shop or do some sightseeing of their own. With a free day ahead, the students decided to go see the Neuschwanstein Castle. It was a beautiful castle filled with glamorous paintings and an unbelievable amount of gold. The students knew they had not made a mistake in going to see the palace. Each room offered new glimpses into the lifestyle of people from the past.

The following day started with a trip to Vienna Austria. When they finally arrived, the travelers stayed there for the next three days. They soon realized that there was a 10:00 P.M. curfew for everyone under 21, but they made do with staying in the hotel. The next day they took a tour of the town, the St. Stevens Cathedral, the Spanis Riding School, and the Schonbrunn Palace. Soon afterward it was time to head toward Salzburg, where they took a short tour of the city, and visited the birth-place of Mozart. The students arose and left for Nuremburg. This was their last night to repack their already overloaded suitcases with the numerous souveniors they had purchased along the way. Everyone was very tired from the strenuous trip, but all knew it was a trip they would never forget.

Trojans' Lives Affected

The year of 1980-81 was filled with events which affected the lives of many people. These events ranged from the death of Colonel Sanders to the release of the American hostages in Iran, from the election of a new president to the eruption of a quiet volcano. The lives of people around the world, as well as in America, were changed by yellow ribbons of hope and by ashes of destruction.

The prominent figures who passed away included such people as Colonel Sanders and John Lennon. These deaths affected everyone on Trinity campus as well as people across America. The list of eleven secret herbs and spices made Sanders a leader in the chicken business, John Lennon will always be remembered for his role in the Beatles. Their songs reflected the feelings of the American people.

snow on the streets of the cities. People swept sidewalks and porches in gloomy despair trying to fight the every-falling residue.

While the Washington volcano was blowing its top, Ronald Reagan was campaigning against Jimmy Carter for the presidency. On Tuesday, January 20, Ronald Reagan was inaugurated as the 40th president of the United States, defeating the incumbent, Carter.

On this same Tuesday, 52 Americans rejoined the world by returning from Iran where they had been held captive for 444 days. During this time of distress, yellow ribbons symbolizing hope for the hostages could be seen around various tree trunks, car antennaes, and such. On the day of the long-awaited release, the red, white, and blue turned into yellow as millions of people sported yellow ribbons and shirts symbolizing freedom.

missed the Great Texas Heat Wave of 1980. This rather lengthy span of unbearable weather lasted 42 consecutive days with temperatures ranging over 100 degrees. The heat wave peaked June 27 and 28 as the temperature in Dallas hit 113 degrees — the highest temperature ever recorded in the city. Wichita Falls had a record heat of 117 degrees.

The hostages also missed the first of a series of assassination attempts on wellknown figures. This first attempt was made on the life of J. R. Ewing of television's "Dallas" series. The wicked J. R. survived his fatal accident and kept the nation in suspense for several months wondering "Who shot J. R.?" On the evening of November 21, an estimated 83 million Americans sat down to watch the "Who Shot J. R.?" episode. The villainous culprit was none other than J. R.'s secretary, mistress, and sister-in-law—the devilish Kristin.

The second near-fatal attempt on a prominent person's life was the real life shooting of President Ronald Reagan. The President suffered a collapsed lung from the bullet. He made a remarkable recovery and resumed the task of running our nation.

The third assassination attempt did not occur in America but it affected many Americans and it shocked the world. Pope John Paul II made a miraculous recovery after surviving a lengthy surgery due to a bullet wound. It was only a matter of days after the shooting occurred that the Pope celebrated his 60th birthday — a birthday that almost wasn't.

The past year held many national events which affected the lives of the hostages brought joy into the lives of people around the world.

A close eye was kept on the black children of America by loving parents and by concerned citizens. No one wanted to hear another report concerning a black child who had become the victim of a brutal slaying by a deranged, unknown killer.

Who is killing the children? A rash of killings broke out in Atlanta resulting in more than 30 black children dying. Green ribbons were worn symbolizing the hope that the Americans had while searching for the deranged killer. Every time that a black child was reported missing, the people across America would eringe and pray that the child would be found safe and unharmed. The papers would sport another headline reading "Black Child Missing: Dead or Alive?" while the T.V. news would tell the story of the sad parents who were desperately hoping their child was still alive.

Some of the missing children returned home, but the majority of them never came back. Parents were fearful that the killings would spread to other areas in the together by the concerned citizens who did their part to help the country through the hard times and to relieve the pain others might have been experiencing due to these problems. The people of this country know what it is like to make it through the hard times and we always look to the bright side during times of distress and need. The events of 1980-81, whether they were good or bad, affected many people across America and around the world.

Season Sweethearts Gain Recognition

The Trinity football team elected Mona Gomez as their 1980-1981 Football Sweetheart. She was presented this award at the football banquet. Mona's reply to receiving this award was "I feel honored and I was really shocked."

Above: Mona Gomez represented the Trinity Football Team as their Football Sweetheart. Mona showed her support for the football team by being one of the cheerleaders. She also engaged in many other extracurricular activities.

Mona has been very active during her three years at Trinity. She served as treasurer of the Sophomore Executive Council and squad leader of Spirit Club during her first year at Trinity.

As a junior and senior she was a member of Student Council, participated in FHA, and displayed school pride and spirit while serving as a varsity cheerleader for two years. Mona has also been an active member of Young Life for the past three years.

The basketball team also named their sweetheart, Marsha Byars. Marsha was presented the title of the 1980-1981 Basketball Sweetheart at the basketball banquet.

Marsha was a member of Spirit Club, Student Council, and Sophomore Executive Council during her sophomore year. Her junior year consisted of her involvement in activities such as the Triune staff. Student Council, and Honor Society. Marsha also served as secretary of the junior class. Her main interest was taking Spanish and being a statistician for the boys' basketball and baseball teams.

Band And Troy-Anns Present New Honors

Each year Trinity's numerous organizations elect sweethearts and beaus to represent their particular club. Each organization names and awards their sweethearts in a unique manner.

Alison Short, the 1980-1981 Band

Above: Band Sweetheart Alison Short represents the band very well as she participates in various activities at school. Alison is an excellent student and is very talented both academically and musically.

Sweetheart, has been an active band member for the past three years. She has also participated in other musical activities as she played the viola in the Mid-Cities Orchestra. Alison received ratings of 1 in solos and ensembles. It is evident that Alison has been an asset to Trinity's bands as she played in the All-Region Orchestra her junior year, the All-Region Band her senior year, and the Symphonic Drill Team honored Renee Lecroy as Troy-Ann of the year. Renee was a member of Spirit Club for two years. She was also involved in activities such as Young Life, French Club, and Executive Council.

Jeri Rather was named Outstanding

Officer as she fulfilled the task of being an excellent lieutenant of the Drill Team. Jeri also participated in Spirit Club, Young Life, and FHA.

The Miss High Kick award was presented to Kristi Vandeventer. Kristi has been very active in activities like Spirit Club, Young Life, and HFA.

Glynis Griggs was awarded the title of Best Dancer. Glynis has proved this true as she was Miss High Kick last year and captain of the Drill Team this year. She has aided Trinity as she served in Student Council and Thespians for the past three years. Glynis was also named Senior of the Month. The title of Troy-Ann Beau was given to Tal Milan. Tal has participated in Trinity's football program for the past three years. During his sophomore year he also threw the discus for the track team. As a senior he participated in FHA and Student Council.

Vocational Groups Name Their Honors

Distributive Education Clubs of America has been an active club at Trinity for twelve years. The purpose of the club was to promote and develop youth leadership with the idea focused on careers and interest in distribution and marketing.

Each year students who have been outstanding in various ways are selected as nominees for Mr. and Miss THS. This year the nominees were (seated) Jimmy Mellado, Matt Skinner, Elisa Seiger, Chip Davis, Lori Loerwald, Phil Waschka, Judy Maloney, (standing) Julie Hingst, Mike Wilkinson, and Deidre Earls. These students were chosen for their scholastic abilities, dedication, responsibility, leadership, and outstanding characteristics.

Faculty Recognizes Mr. And Miss THS

Each year the faculty of Trinity nominates and elects two students for the title of Mr. and Miss THS. This year they chose Jimmy Mellado and Lori Loerwald.

"Trinity has already opened opportunities for further education," comments Above: Jimmy Mellado was chosen by the faculty for Mr. THS due to his fine qualities of scholarship, character, and leadership. He is an excellent example of an honor student.

Mr. THS Jimmy Mellado. "Its size and responsibility have made college scholar-ships tangible. The concern and willingness that the faculty displays towards the success of each student has personally helped me receive appointments to West Point and the Air Force Academy."

Along with THS track and football teams Jimmy was named All-District runningback second team. He set a school record in the 330 and received the Foot-

Jimmy plans to lead a career in some field of engineering. "I strongly believe in a complete college education. Trinity has prepared me scholastically with a well-regimented education that will equip me with life-long leadership values."

He is a member of the Honor Society and ranks high in his class. He is sincere with a personality that brightens anyone's day. "Trinity High School is the premiere high school in the area and receiving the title that bears its name makes me feel very proud and thankful."

Lori Loerwald, Miss THS, stated, "I think Trinity High School is a great place for opportunity. Being a student of Trinity has taught me the importance of leadership and communication. I have learned my own interests and plan to further them by attending Southwestern Oklahoma State University and majoring in pharmacy. Someday, I hope to own my own pharmacy in a small town."

Lori keeps busy being the president of the Student Council, member of the Executive Council and an active member and the Optimist awards. Because of the many ways she represents Trinity, the faculty has selected her Miss THS.

Homecoming Essence Prevails Throughout

Traditionally, Homecoming has always been very elaborate and colorful. The halls were decorated, floats were built, and parades were organized to display the classes and clubs enthusiasm during the week. Top Left: Anna Kay helped construct the Spanish float. The Homecoming parade was held on Thursday evening down Midway Drive. It was designed not only to display the floats, but to demonstrate the organization's spirit.

The hall decorating brought out the unity among the students and teachers. It gave everyone a chance to add their own idea to the hall. On Friday, the halls were

Then the excitement began to fill the sym on Friday afternoon. It was time for the Homecoming pep rally. Everyone sathered to cheer the Trojan football team on to a victory. The pep rally was proven to be the climax of spirits for the Trojans.

Now, it was game time for the team. The stands were flooded with friends, parents, and students. The ecstasy and spirits from the stands were behind the Trojans all the way. Trinity was up against the Grand Prairie Warriors. But once again, the Trojan football team proved to be the dominant one. The Trojans rolled past the Warriors with a score 47-14 Homecoming victory.

Trinity's Homecoming was an exciting event. Everyone participated together, as one great big team pushing toward success. All the hard work put into Homecoming made everything worthwhile to

Homecoming Blazes With High Spirits

Enthusiasm and high spirits prevailed throughout the week of Homecoming '81. The campus hummed with activity as students prepared for the large number of gala events. The Student Council worked diligently behind the scenes organizing the schedule of events. People had to be contacted, arrangements had to be made and groups of people pulling together got the job done in style.

Hall decorations set the mood for the week and stirred up enthusiasm with the competition for the best hall. The parade on Thursday night kicked off the major festivities with a flourish. The hard work of the three classes and several organizations earned recognition with fine displays of their interpretations of the theme "Our Heroes Have Always Been Trojans." Spirits were sent even higher with the bonfire following the parade. The fervor of the Trojan spirit remained a blaze and strengthened in intensity with the assistance of the Homecoming Pep Rally.

Finally, kick off time arrived. A wave of spirit balloons filled the sky as South Grand Prairie faced their defeat. With halftime came the climax. Amber Williams received the honor of queen with her court proudly sharing her joy. The 47-14 victory for the Trojans made for a perfect Homecoming. The evening was capped off with a dance, thus ending the memorable occasion.

Combined Efforts Prove Successful

Beautiful sets, well-choreographed scenes, ringing melodies, and an abundance of glamour usually come to mind when the "Sound of Music" is remembered. If anyone who was involved in the preparation of the show was asked what they remembered most, the long hours of hard work probably came to mind. After all, the glamour was a by-product of the hard work.

A large number of people gave their time and talents and thus, made the program possible. The actors and actresses obviously spent many hours rehearsing, correcting, and perfecting. Their constant repetition caused habits to form. The cast soon knew the script inside and out.

Promotions for the musical occurred frequently during these weeks of practice. Several students performed excerpts from the show at various community functions. These glimpses of what was in store created an enthusiasm for the show in the area.

While the practicing and promoting was taking place, another group of people diligently worked designing and constructing the sets. Rhonda Allen, a member of the set crew, said that working on the crew "required alot of extra time and was often frustrating." Rhonda grew close to many people due to all the time spent working with them and this meant quite a bit to her.

Other reliable students were of aid with props and were available to help in any way they could. These students had the responsibility of keeping the entire operation running smoothly. Due to the time and efforts of all those on stage and behind the scenes, the "Sound of Music" was an excellent example of the benefits and rewards of teamwork.

Grand Finale Shows Top Accomplishment

It is opening night. The crowd trickles in and takes their seats. The orchestra begins to play, and the curtain rises. Excitement has peaked.

This was it, the grand finale for all involved in the "Sound of Music." All the long hours of preparation and rehearsals were finally going to prove their worth. The pressure was on. Lights shone brightly upon carefully painted faces. Nerves tensed. The question ran through every mind, "Would it be a success?"

As the show got underway, the cast became aware of nothing except their performance. Selves were left behind and forgotten as the actors and actresses

"became" the roles they portrayed. The scenes were recreated as the cast relived the story.

The show progressed, and the audience was swept along with the flow of the script. All track of time was lost.

When the final number was finished, and the curtain closed for the last time, different emotions surfaced. A slight letdown was experienced after such an extravagant release of emotions. Soon relief and pride flooded over the tired cast. The realization of the accomplishment struck. "We did it!" And the audience agreed whole heartedly.

Seniors Close Out Year With "Style"

The senior prom — an elegant finale to twelve years of school. May 9 was a night for seniors to live it up with style. Girls spent hours finding the perfect formal and they spent even longer getting ready for the big event. Guys rented tuxedos — tails, top hats, and gloves seemed to be the style this year. Some rented chauffered limousines for a true taste of the finer life. After dining at an exclusive and expensive restaurant, such as Reunion Tower, Swiss House, or the Petroleum Club, seniors drove to the Gulf Ballroom of the Americana Hotel in Fort Worth.

The ballroom consisted of a huge dance floor surrounded by forty tables and four hundred chairs. At opposite ends of the room were tables of Chinese eggrolls, chicken wings, knishes, Italian sausages, and Italian meatballs. For those that worried about excess calories, there proved to be no need to worry. KRLD's Bob Knowle kept the music playing while many seniors danced the night away. The variety of music ranged from disco to country-western. Above all, the night was a success, and the success of that night will long live in the memories of all Trinity seniors.

Americana Fulfills High Expectations

The Americana Hotel corresponded well with the style and elegance that radiated from Trinity's senior class on May 9, 1981. The event to take place was the senior prom — The night when all seniors get together for one last celebration.

After arriving, they signed the guest book in the Gulf Ballroom and then settled in for an evening of hors d'oeuvres and dancing. A professional photographer was available all night to take prom pictures.

At a point in the course of the evening, Phil Waschka sang the senior class song, "We're #1," as Jimmy Corder backed him up on the guitar. The Executive Council sponsored and set up a slide show which premiered at about ten o'clock that night.

When the prom began to draw to a close, everyone split up into their groups and went their separate ways. Some seniors simply moved the celebration from the ballroom to somewhere else, in which case they partied until the sun rose. Some of the stronger-hearted ones lasted through breakfast the next morning. The Americana Hotel, as well as the prom itself, fulfilled the high expectations of everyone involved and will certainly be a night to remember.

Beautiful Campus Represents Trinity

"Trinity." Is it a high school or a college campus? Often newcomers to the area would mistake this beautiful school for a college. Setting off of a busy road on a distant hill seemed to be perfect for the Trojan school. Top Left: An evening sunset shown in the library. Top: Eddie Dove dreams and enjoys Trinity. Above Left: The structure of the auditorium is greatly expressed. Above: A good book satisfies Mella Silva during spring weather.

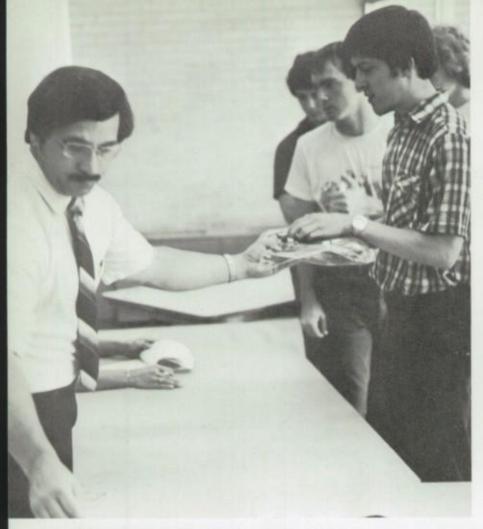

High school was meant for education, new friends, and many adventures. Although Trinity showed all of these advantages, there were also numerous others. Trinity gave each and every student a feeling of self-importance and pride. The surroundings were like that of home and filled with unity and class spirit. To go with everything else, the students and faculty were all friendly toward guests as well as each other.

Shown above is one of the many magnificent campus areas at Trinity. The shining lights depict a feeling of warmth and peacefulness, and show that Trinity is united in mind, body, and spirit.

Trinity was built to satisfy the student. Therefore, many campus areas proved to be favorites to different people. The brick wall in the mall area was a great place for friendly gatherings during lunch, and before school. The locker banks and lobby areas also brought in quite a crowd. For those who enjoyed a peaceful outing in the sun, there was the sun deck for studying or visiting. Also, for the ones who preferred the calm atmosphere, the library was open to everyone interested. There were many other places to go and enjoy the freedom and open life of the Trinity campus.

End Of Year Brings Senior Ceremonies

The end of the year proved to be a busy time for seniors. Due to all the changes which were taking place in these students' lives, a variety of emotions were experienced. Most seniors anticipated finishing high school, stepping out into the Top Left: Mr. Ingle hands Brad Hopkins his cap and gown. Top: Tal Milan and Jimmy Matuszewski eat hot dogs. world, and trying their wings. Many seniors felt some sadness at leaving Trinity and all the fond memories it held for them. But a sigh of relief probably escaped every senior upon the completion of his or her last final exam.

The standard procedures for the graduation process began with the distribution of caps and gowns. Long lines were formed by anxious graduates-to-be. The air was filled with excitement (and water balloons), and so the wait passed quickly.

After receiving caps and gowns, the PTA honored the class of '81 by feeding hot dogs and cokes to its six hundred and some hungry members. Trinity's spacious campus was enjoyed for one last time as the seniors ate their lunches.

Baccalaureate practice followed next on the agenda. After the trial run, the entire class did not meet again until Sunday morning. This ceremony brought the realization to many that they really were graduating. Finally, the long-awaited night arrived.

The big night did indeed arrive with the traditional Trinity flourish accompanying. This evening had been striven for for twelve long years. Proud friends and relatives attended the ceremony and shared in the joy. This night was special for numerous reasons. This was the last time this group of individuals would ever act as a single unit.

This joyous occasion will long remain in the memories of those who participated in it. The grandeur of the procession, the sentimentality of the alma mater and class song, the integrity of the salutatory and valedictory addresses, the pride in the many awards and honors of the individuals of the class were all highlights preluding the moment of receiving the diplomas.

Lighter moments included the flights of a balsa plane and a Rhode Island Red rooster. Afterward, the tassels were moved to the left side of the caps. The class yell was shouted for one last time. Special people were hugged, and many a tear was seen. High school was now over. And thus, was the end of yet another beginning.

The pine trees at Trinity are a living memorial. At the end of each year these trees are planted in memory of the students Trinity has lost. This living memorial became a tradition several years ago and is still done today. The Student Council is responsible for planting these trees which are found throughout the campus.

The Best Of Times

The days have come and gone;
Now the year has come to a close.
Situations, people, and events have made an impact on our life.
We've changed and we've grown.
Life is moving on . . .
But this year will hold

Moments . . .

happen every second and in an instance, they are over.

Masses ...

accompany us on our way through life. Sharing the path with those around makes life memorable.

MEMORIES ...

Preserve times that are set apart and special. These events will travel with us forever.

Memories Treasured Forever

Right: As a tradition of the Troy-Anns, Teresa Montgomery, supports the Trojans to another victory. Below: As everyone knows Trinity has spirited fans of all ages. Future Trojan, Keith McBurnett, shows his spirited dreams for Trinity. Opposite Page: Left: Mrs. Jan Schronk dresses up to prove herself as a turkey teacher. Far Right: Spring graduate Tammy Abel reflects on her high school days at Trinity. Bottom: Angie Harpole and Sherry Rawls combine precision and accuracy in the introduction of "William Tell Overture."

The days slip by.
A moment is now;
A moment was then,
Did you see them slip away?
The masses came and shared them.
Now these moments are memories —
treasured forever.
